TROTSKY ADMITS POLITICAL DEFEAT IN STALIN HANDS

Repudiate Acts In Party Split And Dissolve Faction

MOSCOW, Oct. 18.—Leon Trotsky has publicly admitted his complete political defeat at the hands of Joseph Stalin.

Trotsky and the entire leadership of the opposition, including Zinoviev, Kamenev, Pyatkov, and Yevdokimov, have issued a signed declaration repudiating their actions tending to split the party and confessing that they violated party discipline.

The political penitents, while stating that they continue to hold their individual views, announce they will dissolve their factional organization and "conditionally subordinate themselves to the decisions of the communist congress and the central committee."

They call on all of their supporters to follow their lead.

The surrender of Trotsky and his followers, incidentally, perhaps, the first surrender Trotsky has ever made, is a great victory for Stalin and increases his prestige tremendously.

Trotsky and his associates are expected to voice their views in the communist congress, but as soon as they are outvoted, they will accept the majority and cease activity in opposition, an activity which at times seems to threaten the solidity of the communist party.

KENTUCKY CHIEF SHOT AT PINEBURG

PINEBURG, Ky., Oct. 18.—City authorities here today were bending every effort to locate the slayer, or slayers, of Police Chief Robert Woolum, who was shot to death here yesterday morning.

Chief Woolum, bleeding from three wounds, died before he could tell William Davis, taxi driver and the first person to reach his side, his assailant's name.

Woolum, who had been chief for slightly more than a month, was voted that office at a meeting of the city council which was featured by the presence of masked members of the Ku Klux Klan.

He was said to be a popular officer and no motive for the crime had been uncovered early today.

NOT GOOD MOTHER; KILLS THREE, SELF

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Because she said she had not been a good mother to her children, Mrs. Edna May Chamberlain gave deadly poisons to her three youngsters—Edwina, 9; Delora, 7; and John, 4—and then ended her own life in a gas-filled room.

While waiting for the deadly fumes to take effect, the mother wrote:

"This is horrible, most horrible; but I couldn't let the children, for whom I was responsible, live in a world for which I had failed to prepare them."

MURDER FOLLOWS PARTY; HOLD TWO

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—George Lye, 37, was shot and killed early today and his wife, Dorothy, 25, locked in a closet by the slayer following a card party at home, according to the police. The slayer and his companions escaped.

Two women guests are being held for questioning, while police are searching for the slayer and four other men present at the party.

CLEVELAND GIRL MARRIES VIOLINIST

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—Duel de Kerekjarto, Hungarian violinist, and his bride, who was Miss Marguerite Luella Kaase, of Cleveland, were en route to New York today by motor on a honeymoon trip.

The couple was married here last night by Dr. A. B. Meldrum, at Old Stone Presbyterian Church, with Rosa Pohlisse as the bride's attendant. Kerekjarto and the singer gave a concert an hour before the wedding.

WEEK-END TOLL

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—Three persons, one a negro, were killed in week end traffic accidents, police announced today. Mrs. Mary Adams, 68, Charles Owens, 32, St. Bernard, O., and Thomas Johnson, negro, were killed in the different mishaps.

MARIE'S SCHEDULE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Here is the schedule which Queen Marie of Roumania will follow today from the time of her arrival at Quarantine until her departure for Washington.

9 a. m.—Official welcoming boat Macon leaves Pier A, Battery, with committee for Leviathan, anchored at Quarantine.

9:45 a. m.—Greetings of United States and New York City extended to queen. Salute of twenty-one guns from Governor's Island.

11:15 a. m.—Queen arrives at city hall after parade up Broadway from Battery.

12:00—Mayor Walker formally greets Queen Marie in city hall and gives her freedom of city. Proceeds broadcast by WNYC.

12:30 p. m.—Royal party leaves city hall for Pennsylvania station.

1:00 p. m.—Queen leaves on special train for Washington.

MAZER SUES CANTON NEWS FOR LIBEL BY ACTION OF COUNSEL

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—Another move on the part of attorneys for Louis Mazer to secure state's evidence in advance of the murder trial of their client was made when Mazer filed suit for $50,000 against the Canton Daily News, charging libel.

Amerman and Mills and Fetterman filed the suit on behalf of Mazer.

Mazer is now in the Stark County workhouse awaiting trial on an indictment for first degree murder in connection with the killing of Don R. Mellett.

An attempt earlier in the week on the part of Mazer's attorneys to obtain the state's testimony through depositions in another civil case failed, when this suit, filed by Mrs. Florence E. Mellett against Mazer, Ben Rudner and Pat McDermott, murder defendants, was withdrawn.

Still another attempt to question important witness came when Attorney E. L. Mills, and David E. Kramer, who represent Mazer, presented an application for an order to take the depositions of Steve Kaschuk and Peggy Cavanaugh, important witnesses for the state.

The witnesses are held in the workhouse in default of heavy bonds and state laws provide that depositions may be taken where witnesses in a criminal case are in prison.

Under the law, as soon as service has been had in a civil action, either of the parties may begin to call witnesses and take depositions.

"This is just another move in the fishing expedition which attorneys for the defendants in the murder case have started," said former Judge Hubert C. Pontus, attorney for the Canton Daily News.

Before service of summons in the libel suit had been made, Amerman and Mills sought to serve notice upon Pontus for the taking of depositions on October 19. Pontus refused to accept service. Likewise when the deputy sheriff sought to make service on Charles E. Morris, publisher of the Canton Daily News he also refused to accept the service.

Their reasons for declining to accept were not stated but it was intimated that the validity of the filing and its purpose will be challenged.

FOUR GANGSTERS HELD IN CHICAGO MURDER PROBE

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—While authorities were investigating a new gang murder today, a quartette of famous gangsters whose names are high on the list of "who's who" in Chicago's beer and alcohol industry were looting in cells at the county jail.

They are: Vincent "Schemer" Drucel, partner of the late Earl Weiss, whose career was cut short by machine-gun bullets; Vincent McElraine, brother of Frank McElraine, South Side gang leader, under arrest awaiting trial for murder; Julian "Potatoes" Kaufman, and Harry "Sog", henchmen of the North Side syndicate.

All four of the men were arrested over the week-end in Chief of Police Collins' drive to "round up all known gangsters."

The latest gang killing to engage the attention of police occurred early yesterday. A man believed to be John Dano, a Sicilian, was "taken for a ride," and shot to death and flung from the speeding automobile.

TINNEY CRITICAL

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—Frank Tinney, comedian of Earl Carroll's Vanities, again hovered at the point of death today, following a serious relapse.

He has been in St. Mary's hospital for three weeks, suffering from the effects of two broken ribs, which were fractured in a fall from a taxicab.

Queen Marie Of Roumania Arrives In America Accompanied By Children; Enthused On Visit

QUEEN MARIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Queen Marie of Roumania enjoyed her first glimpse of America when the liner Leviathan, bearing the royal party from Cherbourg, arrived at Quarantine at 6:15 this morning. The great liner took on a pilot at Ambrose channel for the slow journey up the harbor.

At nine o'clock the steamer Macon and a coast guard cutter were to leave the Battery with the official welcoming committee to welcome the visitors. A cutter containing newspapermen left earlier for the liner.

The queen did not leave the ship until shortly before 11 o'clock. The royal party was taken aboard the Macon and reached Pier A, at the Battery, about 11:15. The queen was accompanied by her son, Prince Nicholas, and her daughter, Princess Ileana.

The royal passengers gave vent to excited exclamations as they sighted the hundreds of tiny squares of light twinkling through the semi-darkness from the high windows of Gotham's towering skyscrapers, where office workers kept all-night vigil.

They, like most of the other passengers, had but little sleep last night. When the huge liner took on a pilot in Ambrose channel at five o'clock this morning, the queen sighed happily:

"We are there. I am so glad. Although the queen is fully aware of the heavy program mapped out for her later today after she lands in New York, her conversation with her children on deck this morning was all of that first sight of America, for which she had waited and planned for nine years."

The queen's first view of America was somewhat obscured by a fog which hung over the harbor. A cold, steady rain fell during the early forenoon.

While the royal travelers were watching through the dawn, the royal suite was a scene of confusion as the queen's retinue attended to the last-minute duties of packing the fifty or sixty trunks, suitcases or handbags which must be unloaded at Quarantine when the royal party goes ashore.

Much of the queen's last evening on board ship was spent in presenting gifts among the Leviathan's crew as tokens of her voyage. To Commander Herbert Hartley, commander, Queen Marie presented a large photograph of herself in full court dress, wearing her crown and jewelry. The photograph, especially autographed for Commodore Hartley, was mounted in a gold frame. It bore the inscription: "To Commodore Hartley and across the lower portion of the photograph was written 'Marie-Leviathan, 1926.'"

Princess Ileana, almost in tears at the prospect of leaving the ship, where she has had such a good time, presented a photograph of herself, similarly inscribed, to Commodore Hartley.

Photographs and presents were given to members of the crew who served the royal party. The queen

PRINCE NICHOLAS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The city, state and nation joined hands today in extending greetings to Queen Marie of Roumania and her two children, Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas.

The welcome will begin with the booming of twenty-one guns from Governor's island as the municipal boat Macon taken the royal party from the Leviathan to the Battery. Fire boats will fling columns of water in the air and airplanes will hum a welcome from overhead.

Ab the Battery, a fleet of motors will escort the royal guests to the city hall, where they will be extended the freedom of the city by Mayor James Walker. In the car with Queen Marie will be James Butler Wright, assistant secretary of state representing President Coolidge.

Thousands of office workers prepared to shower the queen with ticker tape from the windows of skyscrapers as the royal party moves up Broadway. Mounted police were detailed to hold crowds of curious thousands in check during the procession up Broadway and at the queen's departure for Washington, D. C. on a special train at 1:00 p. m.

Only one discordant note was expected at the queen's greeting: a meeting of the International Labor Union was to be held in Union Square to protest against the queen's reception here and that the "barbarous treatment" alleged to have been accorded the political prisoners of Roumania by the Roumanian government be investigated.

No serious disorder was anticipated, however.

COMMUNITY CHEST PLANS FORMULATED FOR ORGANIZATION

Plans are crystallizing rapidly with respect to effecting permanent organization of a Community Chest in Xenia.

The Federated Parent-Teacher Association, at a recent meeting, formally indicated its willingness organizations in conducting a joint to join with other charitable or chest campaign beginning October 31, according to Mrs. S. M. McKay, president.

Mrs. E. P. Hamlin and Mrs. Charles Adair have been named as the two P. T. A. representatives on a proposed committee which will be chairman of this committee will appoint a chest executive committee which will have direct charge of the campaign of solicitation.

The P. T. A. is also engaged in working out a detailed report of expenses during the fiscal year, October, 1925 to October 1926, upon which a budget for the coming fiscal year will be based. Entrance into the yearly chest drive will eliminate the separate campaign for funds conducted annually by the Federated P. T. A. for the Opportunity School.

The executive board of the Social Service League is to hold a meeting in the City Commission chamber Monday night at 7:30 o'clock to discuss the chest. Two delegates to the committee which in turn will name a chest executive committee, will also be named at this meeting if the proposition meets with favorable action. Arrangements for preparation of a budget for October, 1926 to October, 1927, will also probably be made.

Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, has already signified its intention of joining hands with the others in the drive but its formal entrance is dependent upon action the other two organizations take.

If present plans are carried out, only three organizations will participate in the drive this fall. Hopes of expansion are entertained, however, for 1927 when the Boys Scouts and Xenia Recreation Association may be invited to join.

WIFE OF SENATOR CALDER VICTIM OF BIG JEWEL THEFT

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Apparently without any clue, save a description of the three bandits, 1,200 detectives, under the personal direction of Commissioner McLaughlin, are making a citywide search today for the holdup men who escaped with $15,000 in jewels from an automobile containing Mrs. Wm. M. Calder, wife of former United States Senator Calder; their daughter, Mrs. Robert C. Lee; Mrs. Calder's sister, Mrs. Wm. W. Harlow; and the Calder chauffeur and his wife.

The party in the car were not held up but were kidnapped. After a wild ride of an hour through Brooklyn streets, the bandits finally dumped their victims out of their own car exactly in front of Commissioner McLaughlin's home. It was from the police head's apartment building that the frantic women called the police for help.

The three bandits were described as young, "looking like dope fiends."

RIVER PILOT DEAD

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—The body of James C. Holloway, 70, veteran Ohio river pilot, was forwarded to his Point Pleasant, W. Va., home for burial.

For more than fifty years Holloway has been a familiar figure along all Ohio river points. He died at a hospital here Saturday.

MINDING MOTHER

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—I was speeding because the boss told me to hurry home," Hubbard Reynolds, 22, told Municipal Judge George F. Eyrich when arraigned in traffic court.

"And I never disobey the boss," he added.

"Who is your boss?" asked the court.

"My Mother," replied Reynolds.

"Best excuse in the world. I just saved you $5 and a week's driving suspension," said the judge.

BALANESCU TRIAL GIVES THRILLS TO BIG ATTENDANCE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—Expected sensational revelations by Dr. Otto Saphir, well known pathologist and instructor at Western Reserve University, concerning the "love potion" which is charged caused the death of Dorothy Elizabeth Kirk, brought the largest crowd of women and men since the opening of the trial of Emil "Frenchy" Balanescu to the court room today.

Two long lines extending up and down the corridors of the old court house struggled to cram into Judge Carl Weygandt's tiny court room and it was found necessary to call in extra guards to hold the line back.

Testimony of Dr. Saphir and of Corner A. H. Hammond, who made an official autopsy following the death of Miss Kirk and on whose report the charge of manslaughter was brought against the medical student, will close the testimony for the prosecution, James C. Connell, prosecutor, announced.

The Paris-born student may take the stand in his own defense this afternoon, his attorneys, Fred and Arthur Day, announced.

FOUR CASES FACE COURT OF APPEALS TUESDAY MORNING

Only four cases are docketed for consideration when the Greene County Court of Appeals convenes for the October term in Common Pleas court Tuesday morning.

Each of the four cases has been appealed in error.

The cases are as follows: The Board of Education of Beaver Creek Twp. Rural School District against Walter Hess. J. C. Marshall and C. L. Darlington are attorneys for the plaintiff with Attorney F. L. Johnson representing the defendant.

Ap. B. Kester against Frances C. Laist. McMahon, Corlino, Landis and Markham are plaintiffs' attorneys. Marcus Shoup is the defendant's attorney.

James Conner against The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. Attorney C. L. Darlington is counsel for the plaintiff and Matthews and Matthews and H. D. Smith represent the defendant.

Ralph McAfee against John W. Johnson and others. Attorney C. L. Darlington is plaintiff's counsel with Marshall and Marshall attorneys for the defendants.

SCANDAL REVEALED IN SLUSH FUND PROBE

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—An alleged political deal by which Frank L. Smith, Republican nominee for senator in Illinois, would be tendered a federal appointment by President Coolidge's administration if he withdrew from the senatorial campaign, was told to the senate slush-fund committee today by George B. Safford, state superintendent of the anti-slush league, at the re-opening of the slush-fund inquiry primary.

It never went through, Safford revealed.

"TRUDIE" TELLS SHE WAS "DOPED"

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Miss Gertrude "Trudie" Ederle was defeated in her first attempt to swim the English channel because she was drugged, according to her statement to newspaper correspondents today.

Enemies put drugs in a cup of beef tea given her as nourishment as she neared the chalk cliffs of Dover and she was defeated.

She came here for a theatrical engagement.

ANDREWS STAYS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 18.—Declaring that he has made "material progress" in the past twelve months toward making the United States dry, General Lincoln C. Andrews, prohibition czar, today announced there no longer exists a reason for his threatened resignation, November 1, and that he will continue in office.

REVOLTERS LEAVE SUN CHUAN-FANG FOLLOWING ROUTING

Shanghai Reported As Threatened By Inva- ding Troops

SHANGHAI, Oct. 18.—This city was a seething cauldron today as Shanghai was gradually being drawn into the war zone by the warring Chinese factions.

Following the rout of Sun Chuan-fang, war lord of Eastern China, and the action of Hsia Chow, civil governor of the province of Chekiang, who began a troop movement toward Shanghai, 3,000 Nanking revolutionaries withdrew their allegiance from Sun. This revolt was hastily checked when troops loyal to Sun in the Shanghai area organized and marched on the Nanking rebels.

After a skirmish, Sun's troops surrounded and captured the revolutionaries. Sixty of the ringleaders were executed.

Word that Shanghai is threatened by invading Chekiang troops has caused an influx of Sun reinforcements to this city over the Nanking railway. Other troops were being rushed here to protect the Lungwha arsenal.

Cantonese troops were reported to be in full control in Hupeh today. General Chang Kai-shek, Cantonese dictator, has established his northern headquarters at Wuchang, which was captured from Sun Chuan-fang's army after a series of terrific battles.

His armies captured and disorganized Sun, with his general staff, fled down the Yangtze river and is believed to be making his way to Nanking.

Following the loss of Wuchang to the Cantonese, Sun suffered another grievous loss when his river steamer Kiangyung blew up as it steamed down the Yangtze, when ammunition aboard the vessel exploded. Twelve hundred of the 1,500 men aboard were either killed by the exploding shells or drowned when they leaped into the river.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—A Central News dispatch from Shanghai today stated the American steamer Iping was attacked by Chinese troops in the Yangtze river above Shanghai. The attackers were driven off by the fire from an American gunboat.

The British river gunboat Bee also was fired on by the Cantonese troops, the dispatch said. The Bee returned to the river and the Chinese retired without causing any casualties aboard the Bee.

MEDICAL MEN MEET WITH CELEBRITIES

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—World-famed surgeons mingled with county practitioners here today as 700 medical men from many parts of the world began the four-day session of the Interstate Post-graduate Assembly of America. The affair is expected to draw nearly 4,000 visitors.

Among foreign medical celebrities attending are:

Dr. Albert Doerlein, of Munich, German authority on women's diseases; Dr. Friedrich von Munnich, of Munich, dean of German medical men; Dr. Alexis Carrel New York, who developed the Carrel-Dakin solution for treating wounded soldiers; Dr. W. Sampson Hanley, London cancer expert; and Dr. N. Curgel, Rio de Janeiro, child surgeon.

DETECTIVES SEEK MISSING BONDSMAN

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Pittsburgh detectives were in Buffalo today searching for Charles E. Knapp, a bond salesman, who disappeared from Pittsburgh with a large suitcase containing $25,000, of which more than $100,000 represented funds of the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company of Pittsburgh. Knapp is said to have taken a train at Pittsburgh for Buffalo.

The nationwide search for Knapp follows the closing of the bank and the taking over of its affairs on Saturday by the Pennsylvania banking authorities.

Knapp, with five other men, is alleged to have been involved in a bond deal through which they were to purchase $500,000 worth of liberty bonds for $425,000.

HOLD SUSPECT

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 18.—Detention of a new suspect in the $150,000 Elizabeth mail-truck robbery and the abandonment of the intensive man-hunt in the Watchung mountains marked the progress today in efforts to run down the eight bandits who shot and killed the truck driver and wounded two other men in a sensational holdup last week.

The suspect, who gave his name as William Gleason, 33, is being held here pending a check-up on his recent whereabouts.

TRIES TO DROWN SON WHEN RACE HATRED OVERCOMES LOVE

By A. M. M. STRAND

LONDON, Oct. 18.—An intensely dramatic duel between mother love and race hatred is revealed by the attempted murder of her son by an English woman, Genevieve Parker.

This emotional tragedy began eight years ago when Genevieve became the mother of a baby boy whose skin was a golden-brown instead of white. That she loved the child who must later face the world terribly handicapped by the "bar-sinister" and the still more dreaded dual taint of color, is proved by the testimony of many witnesses.

In the meantime a secret hatred and shame of the child's dark race was tearing at her heart. The continuous consciousness of the sensation she created wherever she was seen with the boy and remorse for his sake as well as for her own, at length drove her to so frantic a pitch of agony that she could bear it no longer.

Taking the tiny lad on the pier at Southend, she caught him to her, kissed him passionately, pressed him to her breast and then suddenly hurled him into the surging waters beneath.

A man some distance away saw the child's terrible plunge and dived in. But it was not for some moments that he was able to reach the unhappy boy, who, with natural longing for life—and as yet had no inkling of how tormented his life might be—had struggled desperately to cling to the buttress of the pier.

When charged with attempted murder, Genevieve sobbed heart-brokenly and was eventually carried unconscious out of court. A pathetic touch, as was later shown in court, lay in the fact that her dramatic arrest took place in front of the child, who struggled to free his mother from the policeman's grip.

Sobbed Genevieve to the police officer: "I don't know what I did! Perhaps I threw my boy over. I must have been ashamed of him."

Genevieve's fate is at present undecided, but whether she spends years behind prison doors, or is an asylum for the rest of her life, she will be torn between her two ruling passions—a mother's love and the pride of race.

relief. I see him every so often still. He looks fifteen years older, his practice is gone, his family has disowned him and his daily ration is a quart of cheap brandy. Another man is one who speaks eight languages and was a college professor until he inherited some money and decided to live in Paris. We buried him a few weeks ago by public subscription. Not just booze and women, but the paralysis that seems to attack the nerve of mental activity after a few months of Paris, just as it saps the moral code, caused his downfall.

I once warned a father who contemplated sending his nineteen-year-old son alone to Paris, to complete his studies.

"Pooh!" he answered. "Fred isn't that sort, and anyway, I believe in letting a boy sow a few wild oats—makes him more of a man."

For all that, nothing scorched is quite as good as new.

Texas "Knows" Paris.

Bill Hogg turned up the other day in his usual casual manner. Bill Hogg is a Texan with one of the finest flats in New York who knows Europe better than many Europeans.

You never see him in Ciro's or other resorts flooded by Americans. A far more likely place to find him is a certain tiny restaurant far away in the unexplored St. Paul quarter where the fat and pleasant-faced patronne greets Hogg as an old friend and gets a millionaire's wise advice on her small investments.

Or you might find Bill in a little village at the foot of the Alps, where "Monsieur l'Americain" is quite as much respected as "Monsieur le Maire" himself. Bill knows the name of every child in that village.

Why Patou Is Worried.

The fashion for plumper women is catching on, say the dressmakers. Jean Patou is horror-stricken. "When fat women become fashionable I shall quit the dressmaking business," he told me last night.

Friends of Patou will learn with pleasure that his health is much better since his long, enforced rest in the foothills of the Pyrenees.

A Secret Resort

Vichy, where rich men go to clean their livers, is slowly emptying and Leonard Replogle, Barney Baruch and others who carefully kept their names from the hotel registers there have left, cured presumably, until next time.

Curious thing about Vichy. Rich men love to have it known that they're at Deauville, or Evian or Biarritz or Cannes. But there is something intimate about one's liver and the hotel where most of them stay in Vichy is neither the largest nor the most luxurious. Neither is it known to the general public.

Gambling was the heaviest on record at Vichy this year. More than a billion francs changed hands.

MIRRORS OF PARIS

By BASIL WOON COPYRIGHT 1926

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Frank Erne has gone back to America following a month or two spent looking up old friends in Paris, of which city he was a permanent resident before the war. The former lightweight, who looks like a retired banker now, found a few of his former cronies still alive.

These were the men who have learned how to live in Paris. There is a saying among the oldtimers that if a man can live five years in Paris without becoming a hopeless drunkard or pauper he has a good chance to remain until a ripe old age.

It is now nearly ten years since I came to Paris to live there permanently and I have watched a goodly procession of men go down the road and over the hill to the pauper's lodging house and the potter's field.

Too Easy to Live. It takes stamina to stand the gaff of Paris. For Paris is an easy place to live in—too easy. Americans who work here are mostly representatives of American concerns and no boss' eagle eye is there to scan the clock when they enter and leave the office.

The few who are married have the bulwark of the home behind them, but the counter attraction of Maxim's and Montmartre is strong. In 1919 we were four American newspapermen among the many "covering" the peace conference. All were married. Of the four I am the only one who still has the same wife and that may be because my wife had greater stores of patience than the others, for in those days I wasn't exactly addicted to carpet slippers and the parlor fire.

Haven for Bachelors. But the majority of Americans in Paris are bachelors. Bachelors as far as the law is concerned, anyway. Numbers of them are young. And if, as Bob Service said, "When a girl's sixteen and as poor as she's pretty" she's as safe in Paris city as a lamb night-strayed where the wild wolves roam." It is as well to know that Paris can be quite as dangerous to the young American struggling for a foothold here.

The added economies which come from this volume of more than a thousand Chrysler cars per day have their root and source in Chrysler Standardized Quality.

This unique plan of coordination between scientific engineering and precision manufacturing gives Chrysler "60" its remarkable value—evidenced by a speed ability of 60 miles and more per hour, dashing flexibility, matchless economy, smoothness, handling ease, comfort and long life—qualities which placed Chrysler "60", even at its old prices, far beyond comparison.

Today, at its new lower prices—with exactly the same performance ability, with exactly the same quality—the Chrysler "60" stands forth more emphatically than ever; a value not even remotely approached by any other light six in the industry.

Sixty miles, and more, per hour. Pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 7½ seconds. Amazing economy of 22 miles to the gallon. Characteristic Chrysler smartness and beauty. Phenomenal riding ease. Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes. Oil-filter and air-cleaner. Full pressure lubrication. Seven-bearing crankshaft. Impulse neutralizer. Manifold heat control. Road levelizers, front and rear. Chrysler proved long life. Roomy, luxurious bodies with beautiful upholstery in enclosed models. Attractive new color harmonies.

LOCAL WOMEN ATTEND

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

Xenia and Greene County will be well represented at the state convention of the W. C. T. U. which opened in Steubenville Monday and will continue until Friday. Mrs. Carrie L. Flatter, president of the Greene County W. C. T. U. and Mrs. M. R. Snodgrass, state superintendent of health for the organization and Mrs. William McCall, of the McCallan Union, left Xenia Friday preparatory to attending the convention. Mrs. Flatter and Mrs. Snodgrass both spoke in Cambridge Sunday in the interest of the Anti-Cigarette Alliance and went from that city to Steubenville. Mrs. McCall visited over the week-end with Mrs. Mary L. Collins, former Xenian, at Chester, W. Va., and will accompany Mrs. Collins, who was formerly president of the Greene County union, to Steubenville.

The banquet which is to be held Monday was composed of: Mrs. W. O. Custis and Mrs. William Smith, of the A. C. Turrell Union; Mrs. Walter Davis, president of Xenia Union; Mrs. Roy Spahr, president of the South Side Union; Mrs. J. H. Harris, representing Effie Carter Union; Mrs. Lucy Barber, Cedarville and Mrs. John Funderburg, Yellow Springs.

Among speakers at the convention will be Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the M. E. Church and J. F. Burke, of Elyria.

NEWSPAPER WOMEN

TO MEET IN AKRON

The Ohio Newspaper Women's Association will hold its twenty-sixth annual convention in Akron, Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday, October 23, 24 and 25. The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company will be hosts at a dinner Friday evening, followed by a theatre party. The opening business session will be held Saturday morning, and a feature of this session will be an address by Allene Sumner, N. R. A., on "Writing for Millions." Miss Pauline Smith of Columbus, president, will give her address.

The prize contest luncheon will take place at noon, when announcement will be made of the winners in the contests conducted by the association during the year. Mrs. Charles L. Knight and Mrs. John S. Knight will be hostesses at a tea at the former's home at 4:30 and greetings will be extended by C. L. Knight, owner and editor of the Akron Beacon-Journal. Dinner at the Women's City Club and an evening party at which Mrs. Marjorie McClure, novelist will be presented will conclude the day.

Mrs. Grace Z. Brown will direct her own play, "Bumble's Scoop," and the $100 prize winning editorial will be read.

A prominent Akron citizen will be host at a breakfast at the Portage Country Club Sunday morning, when a report of the clearing house committee of which John Mackee of Springfield is chairman will be given. Group conferences will also be held.

MISS LINDSEY GOES TO CINCINNATI FOR STUDY

Miss Ann Marie Lindsey, who for the past three years has been in charge of the violin department at the Xenia Music Studios in the Allen Bldg., is spending the winter in Cincinnati where she has gone for further study. She is taking work at the University of Cincinnati and the Conservatory of Music where she is to receive her Bachelor of Music degree in June. She also has charge of the violin departments in several of the Cincinnati public schools.

She has been fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. Oscar Valentine from the Conservatory, to take charge of her classes here during her absence. Mr. Valentine is a talented violinist, a conscientious teacher and is said to be well fitted to carry on the work.

Miss Lindsey has worked faithfully and untiringly and has done much to further the cause of better music in Xenia, and also in Jamestown, where she was music supervisor last year. She will be greatly missed and warmly welcomed on her return by her many friends and pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. James Devore of the Nash Road entertained the following guests Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buck, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hisey, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Leopold, and Miss Hilda Devore, of Xenia, and Mr. Walter Leopold, of Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Robinson, of Sabina, spent Sunday in Xenia as the guests of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. John Baughn, W. Market St.

Mr. and Mrs. John McClellan, Washington, D. C., arrived in Xenia Friday for an extended visit with relatives. They are now the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McClellan of the Lower Bellbrook Pike.

Mr. Charles Peters has resigned his position with the McDorman-Crawford Company here, and has gone to Chicago where he has secured employment with Wilson Brothers. He began his work there Monday.

A Woman's Battle

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling bugles to cheer her on, no waving banners. Often she becomes discouraged for ill health is a powerful foe to contend with.

For more than half a century, women have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a faithful ally in their struggle for better health.

Have you become discouraged by the same struggle? Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a chance to be your ally, too. —Adv.

D. A. R. WILL MEET

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Mrs. C. A. Weaver, W. Market St., will be hostess to members of Catherine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the regular meeting Wednesday afternoon. She will be assisted by Mrs. Elbert L. Babb, Mrs. Arthur Dean and Miss Madge Cooley.

Of special interest will be Mrs. William Mager Wilson's paper, "Lafayette's Contribution to American Traditions." This will be the first business meeting of the year and the date for the annual payment of dues. Members are urged to attend.

Miss Martha Wilson of Columbus St., started Friday night for Long Beach, Cal., where she will visit relatives, expecting to spend the winter there.

Mr. and Mrs. Warfield of Chicago, who are motoring east, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Watt, E. Church St., Mr. and Mrs. Watt left with them Monday morning and will accompany them as far as Pittsburgh where they will stop for a visit with their son, Mr. Kenneth Watt.

Messrs. Ralph Nevitt, Lima, and Olley Nevitt, Kenton, spent the week end in Xenia with their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Nevitt.

Miss Doris Whittington is visiting her aunt Mrs. George Handle in Newark, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watt, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., spent the week end in Xenia as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Watt, W. Second St.

Mrs. James Jones will entertain the Ladies' Aid Society of the Old Town Church, Thursday afternoon, October 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Owens, of Cincinnati Avenue, are announcing the birth of a son, weighing eight and one-quarter pounds.

Mr. A. L. Fawcett, of Fayette St., is seriously ill at his home of intestinal trouble.

Mrs. Fudge Mallow of the Wilmington Pike suffered a fracture of the hip when she stumbled and fell at her home Saturday afternoon. She was brought to the Esje Hospital in the Whitmer ambulance and is resting comfortably.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baldwin and daughter, Mary Ann and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Landaker and two children, spent Sunday in London, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Webb.

Superintendent C. A. Waltz of the Greenville schools, Mrs. Waltz and their sons, Olin and Evan, spent Sunday in Xenia as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Beacham, Hill St. Mr. Waltz was formerly superintendent of the Xenia schools.

Mrs. James Burns and her sister, Miss Hannah Dugan, Indianapolis, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Norckauer, E. Third St. Miss Dugan came here from Cincinnati where she visited relatives for the wedding of her cousin, Miss May O'Leary to Mr. Paul Lucas, which took place last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Babb, east of Paintersville, entertained at dinner Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Karl Babb and son, Dean, Waynesville; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Woods and children, Charles and Pauline, Xenia, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel LeValley, of near Paintersville.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure piles. Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby. The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safest method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. S. Hardard, M. D., a specialist set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take and can always be found at Sayre's drug store who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer. adv.

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

Surrounded by their children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cronin, Maple St., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Connor, on N. Detroit St., where dinner was served to a company of fifty at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

In compliment to the honor guests, the color arrangement was gold and white. chrysanthemums and dahlias in profusion being used about the rooms and in artistic arrangement on the two long tables. A bride's cake, iced in gold centered the bridal table at which there were covers laid for: Mr. and Mrs. Cronin and members of their family; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cronin and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cronin of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Reynolds of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Downes and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. John Cronin and Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor, the host and hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Cronin are well known residents of Xenia, where they have made their home for twenty-five years. Their marriage took place in New Paris, O., where Mrs. Cronin who was formerly Miss Nora Egan was born and reared. Mr. Cronin was born in Ireland, but was reared in Boston, going to St. Paris to make his home as a young man.

He was recently retired after many years of service with the Pennsylvania Railroad company and is on the honor roll of the railroad. Among the out-of-town guests attending the celebration were Mrs. Cronin's only brother, Mr. John Egan of Greenfield, Ind., and his daughter, Miss Ethel Egan; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of New Paris, and Mrs. Catherine McCabe of Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoog and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Herr of Xenia were the only local guests aside from members of the family.

J. F. F. CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Luttrell entertained members of the J. F. F. Club at a masquerade party at their home on W. Church St., Friday night. The guests arrived disguised in ghostly attire, and there were various Halloween features including a "gypsy" who read the fortunes of her patrons in their palms.

There were several contests and games for the enjoyment of the guests and prizes were awarded to Mr. Fred Pennewit and Mrs. Edna Graham. Pumpkin pie and coffee were served by the committee. The club will be entertained next month at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toms, Fairground Road.

ELEVENTH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED BY LAD

J. Warren Mason, young son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mason, south of Xenia entertained twelve of his boy friends at his home Saturday afternoon in celebration of his eleventh birthday anniversary. Because of the rain the weather was in the yard, which had been planned was converted into an indoor affair and the boys had a jolly time roasting wetters about a grate fire. A birthday cake with ice cream was also served and games helped to make the occasion very merry.

TRINITY TO HOLD CONGREGATIONAL DINNER

Members of the congregation of Trinity Church will enjoy their annual congregational dinner in the church social rooms Friday evening at 6:30 it is announced. The affair will take on the nature of a "covered dish" dinner with each family contributing a covered dish and sandwiches.

The dinner committee of which Mrs. F. C. Bishop is chairman will arrange for the meats and desert. Mrs. W. H. McGervey is chairman of the program committee. Announcement of the program will be made later.

XENIA GIRL IS WEDDED IN CHICAGO

Miss Eugenia Considine whose engagement to Mr. Fred E. Orup of Akron, was announced recently, went to Chicago Friday night to join Mr. Orup for their marriage which was to be celebrated in that city Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orup will live in Akron where Mr. Orup is employed by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company. His bride has been employed in the offices of The Hoover and Allison Company this city.

GARDEN CLUB HAS GOOD BULB SALE

A satisfactory sale of flower bulbs by the Xenia Garden Club last Friday was announced by Mrs. Charles A. Kelble, the president. Because of the scarcity and high price of flower bulbs owing to the embargo against narcissus and daffodils the garden club did not go into the bulb sale extensively. Peony roots which were contracted for last spring by Xenians through the club, were delivered.

THE REAL HALL OF FAME

It is the foolish practice of men to set up a grand marble building, call it "Hall of Fame", place stone images there and talk much of names.

Time answers for us all in this way, that of hundreds of supposedly famous men of the hour, scarcely one will be known in 20 years.

But this in itself means little.

There is a larger question than a name that lasts for awhile.

The vital fact turns on the work the man did or tried to do—and the men that works is the only man worth considering.

To find out what you can do best and go ahead and do it, whether it be mending shoes, or plowing, or sweeping the streets, or caring for your family by the sweat of your brow, is to make your life a success.

The man who pays his debts and earns his living in an honorable way is a success, no matter how small the field he plows.

The immigrant on the land, the woman who to feed her children sews shirts in a sweat-shop, the day laborer in the ditch, the fisherman hauling his nets far out at sea, the toiling, half-naked stoker deep down in the hold feeding the fires of the ship, the switchman at the lonesome crossing—are some of the world's real heroes, because they struggle with no thought of applause, no listening senates, no war-like music to make the blood tingle, no medals or prizes of office to spur them on.

These unnumbered millions would require a hall of fame as large as this earth itself.

The wife's smile, the caress of the orphan child, the beggar's blessing, a world of little things like these, take the place of "success" as the word is ordinarily used; and although the careless earth passes by its workers in the trenches, mines, farms and factories, and on the sea, these men are proving their right to live by earning bread from day to day.

NAVY DAY

The observance of Navy Day, Oct. 27, has been ordained for the promotion of practical patriotism. If its purpose is rightly understood and the activities of the navy fully known even the most confirmed pacifist can with good conscience support efforts to make our protection of the sea all it ought to be. It is not for war alone that the navy is maintained, it charts the seas, makes scientific investigations whose results are of immense benefit to humanity, and protects our ocean-borne commerce, to specify but a few of its important services. Without an adequate navy we could not maintain a merchant marine. Without a merchant marine this country would be dependent on ships under alien flags for the carriage of its wares.

Even as it is, American vessels transport only 30 per cent of our foreign commerce. We pay the freight on 70 per cent of our combined exports and imports to foreigners. Developing the navy, we may count on increasing our merchant marine and keeping at home considerable money that we now send abroad to pay freight bills. Would not the saving be somewhat worth while to credit to our navy?

Free traders might answer in the negative, but we do not think any practical patriot would. It is the free traders who object to the protective tariff because it keeps foreign goods out of unfair competition with the products of American works and American men. The more successful the American merchant marine, supported by the American navy, the less money we will pay to foreigners for transporting our exports and imports. And while there are no war-clouds hanging on the horizon and no probability of any war that might involve the United States, yet it is well to keep in mind that in event war ever does arise, our navy must serve as the first line of defense to protect our shores.

ONE WHO DID NOT CHANGE

With all the talk of debt cancellation filling the air and clouding the international atmosphere, one foreign statesman—and that one from a country where cancellation is most fervently urged—stands firm.

Three years ago the editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, sojourning in Paris, interviewed Raymond Poincare, then as now, premier of France. M. Poincare said in part:

"France never has for a single moment thought to escape from her obligations contracted during the war. France never has dreamed of repudiating her signature."

A week ago the premier made another statement on the same subject. Much had happened in the intervening years; many cabinets had been formed in France, and broken up again.

But the Poincare of 1926 is the Poincare of 1923.

"France has never disclaimed a debt. She is no less determined in the future to discharge obligations loyally to the whole extent of her facilities."

Rather Strenuous, Eh What?

1906-TWENTY YEARS AGO-1926

The enterprising clothing firm of Nesbitt and Weaver has finished improving their store room by building an extension to the rear.

Annual inspection party of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh arrived in Xenia and spent the night here. Capt. Kniesly is suffering from a broken arm, the result of an accident.

The Xenia matinee racing season came to a close with an interesting meeting.

Messrs. O. E. Bradfute and R. D. Williamson, two of Greene County's well known stock men, went to Chicago on a business trip.

a good face-lifting-free." The suggestion was overruled.

When the strong man comes to town. That's the essence of Harold Lloyd's next "show" for Famous Players. The strong man who bends an iron bar as easily as he blinks—with of course, the aid of the vegetable colored elixir that the herculean disciple sells for only a dime, ten cents. Sounds funny, doesn't it?

When one seed proves productive there is no reason why another of the same family should not. Violet LaPlante, sister of Universal's clever blonde comedienne, Laura LaPlante, blossoms forth in "The Haunted Home-stead," in the leading feminine role, opposite Fred Gilman.

The Theatre

Richard Bennett admits he is temperamental. Is there any well-known actor who would not admit it? This temperament in Dick Bennett has not passed unnoticed as without a doubt, others, at intervals, have remarked about it. Remember the popular phrase "To pull a Dick Bennett"?

What does temperament actually mean? Some say it is "temper". Richard himself translates it as "Bennett was recently interviewed."

"People say you are temperamental," the interviewer began.

"Of course they do," interjected Richard quickly. "People say a lot of things based on one side of the question. No one knows but those on our side of the footlights the torture of the giggling, coughing, talking, sneezing, foot-scuttling audience. We have worked like galley slaves for weeks, 'til we can barely stand, giving all that's in us, only to have our work destroyed by selfishness and stupidity. If we occasionally break loose under the strain they call it 'temperamental.'"

All of which means, according to Dick, that there are many things that upset an actor's nerves.

New method of face lifting. It was rumored that Scott Sidney, of "The Nervous Wreck," was planning a little rejuvenating stunt.

Chester Conklin, director for Cecil De Mille studios, told Sidney the surgical process was superfluous—he had a better stunt. He shouted "Get into the set. There in the kitchen. Make violent love to Phyllis. Harrison Ford enter. Swat him under the chin and lift him clear out of the door and into the patio. And so—we'll give you

AFTER BREAKFAST

The sun is in the pantry,
The sun is on the stair,
It's dancing on the cellar door
And the tom-cat dozing there.

It shines my copper kettles,
It polishes my range,
And makes my drab dish-washing
Seem something crystal strange.

For through the kitchen window
It shines across the pan,
Building a thousand rainbows
As sun and soap-suds can!

So why mind washing dishes
When breakfast hour is done,
With hands submerged in rainbows,
And heart submerged in sun!

Today's Talk

GROWING PAINS

Forever dissatisfied! To say that of a person, or to apply it to yourself, at first sounds as though a pessimistic note had been struck.

On analysis, however, you learn that such a person is just creeping into his larger self, just finding himself, getting his growing pains.

There is great hope for the man or woman who is forever dissatisfied.

One reason why greatness is so rarely appreciated in its time and age is that the one to whom it later comes through sincere recognition, was so deeply buried in his own desires for the rendering of worth in the world that he placed little value on his own efforts toward greatness. For no man is great who thinks himself great.

All through the dark nights of dissatisfaction and disappointment the really great man bears his growing pains and awaits the morning.

The youth whose legs and body ache, he knows not why, will some day live to understand. And the grown man whose aches run to his heart and through the paths of his brain, also will live to understand that growth can come only through suffering and a hungering and thirsting after that which gives satisfaction.

Each life must have a standard. No one else can place that standard. You must place it for yourself. It must be your priceless possession. And although the colors of this standard may at times droop, it must never be allowed to trail the dust.

Don't mind the pains of disillusionment, of lost opportunities, of blunders committed, of betrayed trust, or of loneliness of spirit. Bear bravely for all these pains convert themselves into growing pains that give you strength for the larger tasks of life, which are the only ones that count anyway.

But if you see another person going through this process, trot over and give him a pat on the back, or press his hand, or climb into his heart where it is warm!

ON

Greene County History

CONTINUING CABIN BUILDING

"The roof, and sometimes the floor of the cabin of the newly wedded pioneer couple, was finished on the same day of the raising. A third day was commonly spent by a few carpenters in leveling off the floor, making a clap-board floor and a table. This last was made of a split slab and supported by four round logs set in auger holes.

"Some three-legged stools were made in the same manner. Some pins stuck in the logs at the back of the house supported a few clap-boards which served for shelves for the table furniture. A single fork placed with its lower end in a hole in the floor and the upper end fastened to a joist, served for a bedstead, by placing a pole in the fork with one end through a crack between the logs of the wall.

"This front pole was crossed by a shorter one within the fork, with its outer end through another crack. From the front pole, through a crack between the logs of the end of the house, the boards were put on which formed the bottom of the bed.

"Sometimes other poles were pinned to the fork a little distance above these, for the purpose of supporting the front and foot of the bed, while the walls were the supports of its back and head. A few pegs around the wall for the display of the coats of the women and hunting shirts of the men, and two small forks or buckhorns to a joist for the rifle and shotpouch, completed the carpenter work.

"In the meantime masons were at work. With the hard pieces of timber of which the clapboards were made, they made billets for chinking up the cracks between the logs of the cabin and chimney—a large bed of mortar was made for daubing up those cracks; a few stones formed the back and jams of the chimney."

BELLBROOK

Hon. George H. Thorne, candidate for Common Pleas judge, spent Sunday with his many friends here.

Bellbrook lost to Beavertown Sunday by a score of 6 to 3. The second game of the series will occur at Beavertown, Sunday, Oct. 17.

Harry Ewery and family, of near Xenia, were Sunday guests of Joseph Avey and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Raper and daughter, of St. Louis, are visiting Mr. Raper's father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Raper.

George Van Camp will make public sale of his personal farm property on Wednesday, October 27.

Cora Dogget, Louise Berryhill and Kenneth Huston are attending Miami-Jacobs Commercial School at Dayton. Roland Kinder, of the village is a member of faculty. It is reported that the institution has the largest attendance in its history—about five hundred being enrolled. Teacher training and other professional courses are now offered.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McGinnis of Waynesville are visiting near relatives in the village.

C. F. Mills, Charles Killan Thomas Van Camp, George Van Camp and family and John Leapson were visitors in Lewisburg one day last week.

Reports from Mr. and Mrs. Oral Hess who are touring in the East and South are to the effect that Mrs. Hess was severely hurt in a fall from the automobile in which she was riding. They are now located in Washington, D. C.

East Side - West Side

OF

By Jack O'Donnell

Ross Santee is winning fame and fortune in New York because he knows how to paint a wild Mustang in action with a cowboy on its back. Years ago Santee laid down his palette at the Chicago Art Institute to answer the call of the wild. We went to Arizona and other western states and became a cowboy. But the artist in his soul cried aloud for expression. Often in the glow of the western sun he would sit on the steps of a ranch house and sketch his friends—cowboys and horses. They saw evidence of genius in Santee's work and implored him to "come East." Santee did a few years ago and immediately his work gained recognition. Today he is successful.

But Santee's heart is still out on the plains. Every so often he bids Broadway goodbye and goes back to his horses and sagebrush. Just before he left on his last trip he told me he couldn't "get used to New York." He said: "I like canyons, but not these that are made by the hand of man from steel and stone and concrete. I'd rather cross in front of a herd of stampeding cattle on a surefooted cow pony than cross Broadway during the theater rush hour."

I sometimes wonder which will win—the city or the plains. And having lived for many years in Santee's favorite country I'm inclined to bet on the plains.

Luther Clap Slavens, known in the mining camps of Arizona as "Lute," will never be what is called a New Yorker. "Lute" likes the open spaces. The granite canyons of Gotham cramp his style and give him a feeling of restriction. He likes New York when it is in one of its gay, mad moods; when prize fights, world's series or six-day bicycle races have the attention of the metropolis. But when the holidays roll around Lute's thoughts go back to Globe, Tombstone or some other town in the cactus belt.

I had dinner with Lute on Columbus Day. He appeared restless and moody.

"Where would you like to be right now, Lute, if you weren't right here?" I asked.

"Down in Globe," he answered promptly. "I'd like to be out there where I know everybody and where everybody knows me. Globe's my idea of a friendly town. Why, if Johnny Houseman and I could get together with me playing my banjo and Johnny singing there isn't anything in Arizona we couldn't have. Arizona! That's a place to live."

Some day Lute will go back. The desert always calls until its sons return.

NEW DISHES THIS WEEK

Baked Sliced Ham: Have the butcher cut one and one-half pounds of ham in a slice about one-half inch thick. Cover this with cold water, place on back of range and let merely soak (not cook) for one hour. Then drain, place the meat in a dripping pan, cover it with a mixture of two tablespoons of flour, two tablespoons of brown sugar, a pinch of dry mustard-powder and a few grains of pepper. Dot with bits of fat and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven (350 to 450 degrees Fahrenheit).

Vegetable Hash: (This is a fine luncheon dish to serve after a dinner of corned beef, cabbage, potatoes and beans. It will be called for in Wednesday's menu). Mix together two cups of cooked cabbage, one cup of cooked white potatoes, one cup of cooked beets, one tablespoon of chopped raw onion, one quarter of a teaspoon of salt, two tablespoons of minced

uncooked celery, a pinch of pepper and one half cup of hot water or left-over clear soup. Now melt two tablespoons of either butter or bacon drippings in a hot frying pan, add vegetable mixture, put on pan cover and let cook slowly without stirring for thirty-five minutes. Then fold one-half of the hash over the other half and serve at once.

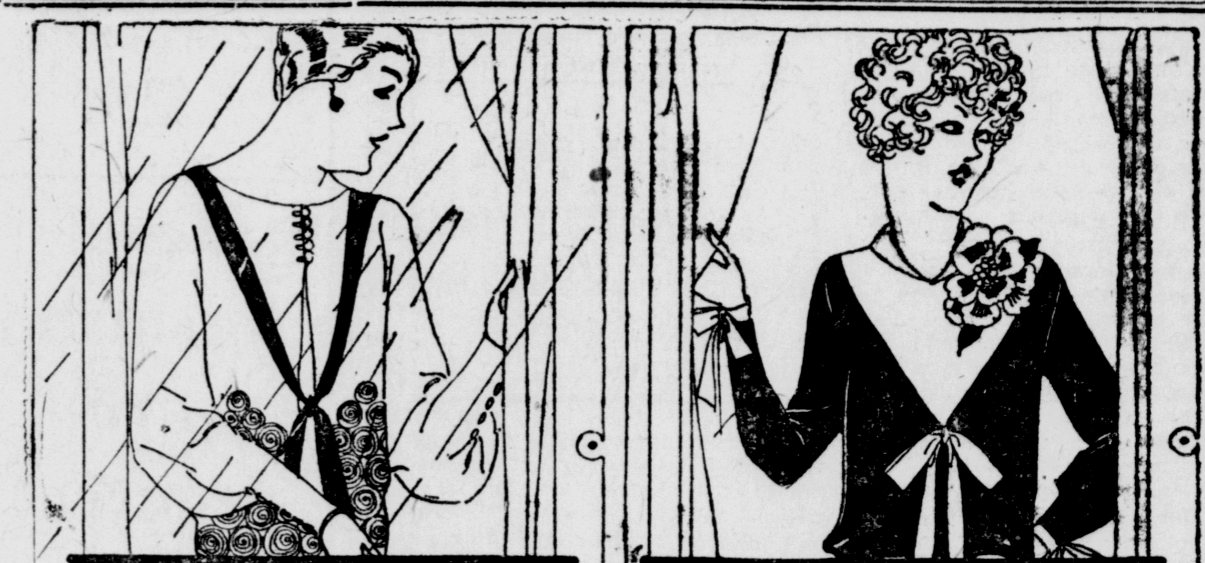

Steamed Fruit Pudding: Mix together one-half cup of butter, one-half cup of granulated sugar, one beaten egg, two-thirds of a cup of molasses, one cup of sweet, cold milk, and two and one-half cups of flour sifted with five teaspoons of baking powder, one-third teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of ground nutmeg, and a pinch of ground ginger. Beat well, then stir in two cups of figs put through the food chopper, and one-third cup of dried currants dredged with one-half cup of additional flour. Turn the mixture into one large or two small buttered molds, tie on covers, and steam from one to two hours before serving, with any desired hot liquid sauce.

SPORTSMEN PLAN

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—The League of Ohio Sportsmen and the Ohio Chapter of the Isaac Walton League are planning to conservation program to be presented to the General Assembly of Ohio when they meet in January. This will be a program of general conservation including the propagation, distribution, and protection of fish and game, the development of State Parks, forest conservation and reforestation of waste lands and protection of water conservation supplies. A joint committee has completed a draft of its program and is now ready to consider details.

Modish Mitzi ONLY MITZI SAW WHAT SHE WANTED TO SEE Jay V. Jay

It's evidently not going to stop raining to oblige Aunt Sophia at any rate. She'd like to go walking and perhaps visit a friend to show off her new blouse of metal brocade with the scarf neckline. Even Aunt Sophia has her little vanities.

Polly looks out to see if the mailman is coming—she did expect at least one letter. Polly is wearing a separate blouse and skirt, too. The blouse is of black velvet and white georgette and it is worn with a satin skirt.

Eleanor looks vainly for the package that was surely going to be delivered this afternoon. Eleanor's blouse combines the chemise front with dolman sleeves and is the important half of an attractive afternoon costume.

Mitzi too thinks very well of the blouse and skirt combination and has just put herself into one. Having made herself beautiful she goes to the window to see if the Goofier isn't coming—and the Goofier rings the doorbell!

Tomorrow—Mitzi Has a New Hat Fitted to Her Head

PARENTS SCORED

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—Parents, asleep to the home and outside life of their children, are awakened by the sound of officers dragging the unfortunate youngsters into juvenile court the Ohio Welfare Conference was told here recently.

It was also pointed out that the delinquent homes do not furnish a majority of the minor delinquents, but that a large number of them come from the better class of homes.

A democratic process for the effective administration of public welfare may strike at the heart of nation's unrest, one of the speakers, discussing another phase of the welfare work, declared in advising governmental social control.

HONOR PLAYER

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—Billy Southworth, one of the stars of the 1926 World Series, as third baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals, who makes his home here, will be honored with a banquet sponsored by business men here Monday night, October 18.

Wilberforce Smashes Way To Win Over Simmons

IMPROVED LOCAL SQUAD OUTPLAYS VISITORS ALL WET

Richie Leads Parade With Two Touchdowns—Score 41-0

Simmons University came up from Louisville, Ky., to invade the domain of Wilberforce University in an inter-sectional game Saturday afternoon, and returned on the futile end of a 41 to 0 score.

It was a greatly improved and versatile Wilberforce eleven that outplayed, outplayed and out-generated Coach Parrish's team. Coach Graves' squad displayed a powerful offense that ripped through the line and skirted the ends for long gains in every period, piling up six touchdowns and five goals after touchdown to score a most crushing triumph over its traditional rival.

At no stage of the game was Simmons able to even temporarily halt the spectacular attack that swept through its ranks for consistent gains. The invading host, pitted a pitifully weak defense against the cleverly assorted plays of Graves' cohorts, threatened at no point of the contest.

Richie, flashy Wilberforce half-back, led the parade of scorers and gained almost two-thirds of the total yardage. Richie figured in almost every drive for a touchdown, scoring two himself.

With the contest hardly begun, a relentless march up the field, ended when Campbell went over for the first score in the initial quarter. Richie drop-kicked for the extra point.

Simmons succeeded in staving off further scoring in this period but was not so fortunate in the second quarter. Wilberforce backs ran more or less wild through a demoralized and disconcerted Simmons squad, Ritchie breaking through on the first play from the twelve-yard line for a touchdown. He then added the extra point. An eighteen yard pass, Richie to Calloway, produced the second and final touchdown of the period.

Coach Graves was good to his substitutes in the final half and many regulars were drawn out but the parade of scoring never slackened. Richie remained in the game and made a twelve-yard touchdown run in the third period, adding extra point a minute later. Wilberforce continued to hover about the Simmons goal line in the final quarter piling up two more touchdowns, one on a fifteen-yard jaunt by Moore and a second on an eighty-yard dash by Campbell.

Richie easily stood head and shoulders above his mates on the offensive and his educated toe produced five points after touchdown. During the course of the contest when a number of Wilberforce drives were halted for the moment, Richie dropped back and essayed field goals as the next best thing, but four attempts from various distances were unsuccessful.

Wufang Ward, Wilberforce back-field star, was missing from the lineup with an infected finger but his absence did not detract from the forceful superiority of his team's attack. The final half of the game was played in a driving rain.

Wilberforce is setting itself for another and more important inter-sectional combat next Saturday when it meets its traditional enemy, Lincoln University at Philadelphia, Pa.

FOOTBALL SQUAD INITIATED WITH EAGLES CLASS

Members of Tilton's football squad composed part of the class of fifty which was initiated by the Xenia Aerie of Eagles, Sunday evening.

The class, which was the largest ever taken into the local aerie, was named in honor of M. O. Burns of Hamilton, grand worthy president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The initiation ceremonies were followed by a banquet at the Eagles building.

Past Grand Worthy President Eldon Hayes, of Wilmington made a short address to the new class, in which he spoke of the achievements and aims of the Eagle Lodge. A new drive for an Armistice Day class was started at the Sunday night meeting. Over 100 persons were present at the initiation ceremonies and banquet.

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE DEFEATED BY JERRY KATHERMAN'S SQUAD

Capital University, mentored by Jerry Katherman, former Central High coach, turned in one of the largest inter-collegiate scores of the season in defeating Cedarville College 52 to 0 Saturday afternoon at Columbus.

The Lutherans rambled at will through Coach Borst's team, scoring eight touchdowns, two in each period, and adding four goals from touchdowns.

THIRTY THREES AND COLUMBUS TIE IN LISTLESS GAME

Visitors Advance In Latter Part; Tilton Fumbles Cost

Tilton's "Thirty-Threes" and Columbus Bakeries swept up and down Cincinnati Ave., Park Sunday afternoon, in a listless contest featured by loose handling of the ball, the game ending with the teams hopelessly deadlocked in a 6 to 6 tie.

Taken as a whole, honors were about even although the Bakeries gained consistently through the Tilton line late in the game.

Two blocked kicks gave the locals their one chance to score in the first period. With the ball on its forty-five yard line Columbus elected to kick, but several tacklers broke through and blocked the boot, the Columbus back finally recovering the ball on his fifteen-yard line with a loss of thirty yards. Once more he essayed to punt out of danger but again the line weakened and the kick was blocked. Bales, substitute guard, picking up the ball and running ten yards for a touchdown. Paul Fuller's drop kick in an effort to add the extra point was wide by inches.

Columbus scored its single marker with the first half of its last legs when B. Hodapp plucked a pass from his brother, J. Hodapp, out of the air and dashed thirty yards for a score, shaking off several prospective tacklers in the jaunt. Patterson's place kick was blocked.

Tilton's held the ball a greater part of the first period but tossed away numerous opportunities through loose handling of the ball. As a matter of fact, frequent fumbles stopped the offensive of both teams.

Columbus made several long advances particularly in the closing stages of the game but numerous penalties stopped the visitors when they came within striking distance of the goal.

Patterson, Columbus fullback, was almost unstoppable, and several brave drives for scores in the second half, were mainly due to this fleet player. Columbus did not essay an attacking role until late in the second quarter but thereafter the bulk of play was in the Tilton's half of the field. Neither team seemed able to launch a sustained drive.

Tiltons gave promise early in the contest of driving through to a victory but the offense collapsed at crucial points. The local eleven seems not to have found itself yet this season as the style of play lacks that coordination and precision that goes hand in hand with all winning combinations. D. Fuller was an offensive star with Halder putting up an excellent defensive game.

The team must improve considerably during practice this week in order to have a chance to defeat the Springfield Bulldogs next Sunday afternoon at Cincinnati Ave., Park. The contest will begin at 2 o'clock.

Tiltons will meet at the Eagles Hall Tuesday night at 7 o'clock for practice.

LIGHTNING PLAYS AROUND GREENE COUNTY IN STORM

Lightning which was very severe during the thunder storms last Saturday, cut some strange capers on the Lower Bellbrook Pike. Two valuable cows belonging to Ward Grant, were found dead after the storm, evidently killed by the same lightning bolt, although the body of one was lying under a tree and that of the other in the open field some distance away.

A large oak tree on the farm of Frank Kyne, struck by a lightning bolt in the morning burned all day and until far into the night, rain which fell in torrents failing to extinguish the flames.

A single corn shock in a field on the farm of Emmet Smith was burned by lightning which did not disturb any of the nearby shocks.

"HAVE A CAMEL" IS MUSIC TO YOUR EARS

Camel is totally different from any other smoke. . . . It is more than a cigarette. . . . A lighted Camel is smoking enjoyment realized—the closest thing to the perfection of taste this old earth ever knew.

Camel's popularity has no equal. Camel demand exceeds any other cigarette preference ever known. To say "Camel" is to ask for the world's most popular cigarette. And to light a Camel is to taste the best.

For there's a solid reason back of the fame and the enjoyment of Camels. Quality. Camels are rolled of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos money can buy . . . blended for matchless taste and fragrance.

If you would know how mild and mellow a smoke can really be, just treat yourself to a pack of Camels. Once you know what these words mean, they're music . . . "Have a Camel!"

CHAPTER 29 PALM BEACH

Mary Forrest walked along the promenade at Palm Beach, Florida. It was a sparkling morning and eleven o'clock. Beside her was a sea so warm, so multi-colored, that just to look at it made one feel poetic, dreamy. Above her was a sky so impossibly blue and crystalline that it almost let her see quite clearly into heaven.

There were gardens all about her, heavy with the odors of a thousand roses.

Against Andalusian walls the bougainvillea splashed its glowing colors. It was an exotic scene for winter time, especially when one thought of New York's bitter blasts and snow-storms.

But these were far away. And Mary Forrest, white-clad, walked in sunshine.

There were lots of other pretty girls about the place. They followed the fashion so slavishly that they all seemed to wear a kind of uniform. White silk skirts and sweaters. Simple little two-piece sports frocks, pastel-tinted.

And this bicycle craze! Odd, wasn't it? They all had bicycles—not motor ones, but the old-fashioned "push-bike" kind.

These were the Four Hundred—Palm Beach's inner circle.

Mary swung along to the office of her employer's broker. Cyrus Wade had told her at their early breakfast that she must come and fetch him if he lingered overlong in this charmed spot.

For—like so many writers and followers of the "Arts"—the ticker had a marvelous lure for him. "Playing the market" was a genuine hobby of the little novelist.

It was not too profitable a hobby, and Mrs. Wade had encouraged Mary's search for him.

"Time he was at his honest work!" she had rapped out. "If he loses all his money, who's going to pay the bills down here, I'd like to know?"

So Mary had set off. She found him in a delightfully alfresco room that looked like anything but a broker's office. The paneled walls were stained a heavenly blue. There were lounge chairs of gray wicker, extraordinarily comfortable. Sunlight in bright stripes was sifting through the window awnings.

"Like the deck of a yacht," thought Mary, much intrigued. "Or the loggia of one's favorite castle in Spain."

The real purpose of the place was displayed by automatic young men with wires attached to their ears. They moved jerkily towards blackboards, chalking with nervous fingers the hourly temperature of the stock market.

Cyrus sat enthralled. No inducement of mere work would tempt him from the fascinating scene.

"Take the morning off, Miss Forrest." He was rooted in his comfortable wicker chair, smoking a cigar of long dimensions. Then he added: "What's my wife doing?"

"Oh, she's off to a meeting for bettering the condition of the farm women, round about here," said Mary. "She won't be free till nearly lunch-time."

Extraordinary, wasn't it, the passion for "bettering"!

That explained, too, this crowded "ticker" room. Was it love of money, or the thrill of the eternal game? Progress—and ever Progress—was the slogan.

Crazy for amassing money? Or mere habit?

Mary walked back into the sunshine. Money as a means to an end was laudable. But hard cash, as a goal purely in itself, was incomprehensible, she thought.

Her thoughts drifted to Philip Andover. When would she see him? Surely—soon? He was no worshipper of the golden calf. He followed Art.

And yet—

This friendship with the Stuyvesants? How rich they were! How influential! Had the lure of gold touched Philip? Her heart contracted at the thought.

She went along a shaded walk, so gay with sweet-smelling blossoms. Rolling-chairs, with negro pushers, and bright awnings up for shade went by her. Her eyes searched the passers idly.

Then suddenly a voice—behind her—young and eager.

"Mary! Mary Forrest! You—at last!"

She wheeled round to meet the gaze of Philip.

"You? Here?" she gasped, praying that coyness—yet, and pride—would descend upon her at this moment. She wouldn't let him guess her feelings, not if she could help it.

"As large as life—and perfectly delighted to be with you," Philip dropped into step beside her. "Shall we walk together?"

If only they could walk through life together, cried the heart of Mary Forrest.

But aloud she said, in a detached sort of tone:

"I have the morning off. But I should have thought you'd still be doing duty with the Stuyvesants."

He colored under his coat of tan. Handsome he looked. But at the moment just a little awkward.

"Confound the Stuyvesants! They've kept me from you long enough!"

Her heart gave a great leap at that. But not for words would she have let him guess at these emotions.

"As though a man is ever kept from anything or anybody, if he chooses not to be!" She contrived a little curl of the lips, and a half-disdainful, half-amused smile.

"Mary! You don't mean it. You know I've wanted—"

"Nonsense! You've had a good time! So have I!" Her tone was as bracing as a bucket of cold water flung into his face.

"If you'd give me a moment to explain! It was a pure matter of business with the Stuyvesants. The old man is in the advertising game. Head of a huge concern. He's offered me a chance. Quite an exceptional one, I think. They have a staff of artists, but I—"

He broke off, seeing the queer expression on her face. "You think I'm not telling the truth. You think that I was interested in the daughter—"

Mary's chin went up. "I have not thoughts in the matter. Why should I?"

That seemed conclusive. Philip, however, continued: "Old Stuyvesant insisted that I motor down with them. Beggars can't be choosers, you know. He disliked talking business in the hotel in Pinehurst. Golf was on his brain all day, and highballs in the evening!"

Mary turned to him with grave eyes.

"You don't have to make these explanations. You are perfectly free to do exactly as you choose. I have nothing at all to do with me, I can assure you."

"But it has." Concern was on the young man's face. There in the open road he caught her hand, holding it tightly. "It has everything to do with you—with us. Oh, can't you understand, my dear?"

"You didn't say good-bye to me. You didn't write." Her head was averted, so that he wouldn't see the dawning joy, the hope in her eyes.

"I tried to say 'au revoir' to you—absurd to call it a good-bye, Mary—but you'd gone. I followed so quick that it was no good to write."

He drew her into a grove of cocoanut palms, and found a wooden bench. They both sat down.

"Let's talk a little. Let me explain. Oh, you can't believe I wasn't in earnest back in Pinehurst. You couldn't think me such a—such a cad! The Stuyvesants aren't my sort at all. But don't you see I can't refuse business chances, Mary? There's the future—our future—his earnest voice dropped to a deeper note as he emphasized the pronoun—"to be considered."

"Philip!" She was all smiles and gladness now. The mantle of stiffness, of detachment, fell away from her. "Oh, Philip—you haven't changed? You mean it?"

"Darling!" There was no one passing at the moment, and he suddenly stooped beneath her drooping hat and kissed her. "I love you, Mary. Only you, dear heart. You understand?"

He told her of the business offer. The trouble was that it would mean that he would have to be permanently in New York City.

"And the winters are so cold. That's enough of mine—" His young face clouded for a moment. Mary, a wave of pity and love sweeping over her, knew that he was thinking of the dream inheritance in Cuba that had slipped away from him.

Poor Philip! And she loved him so. She wished that she could give him the whole earth. Ah! if only she had money—or the capacity of earning it in huge quantities! How she would pour it at his feet!

They sat there, talking in the shadows of the palms, and then they strolled along the promenade, which had all the fascination of a moving picture.

"These people take the sun with an air of virtue of ownership," said Philip, smilingly regarding the multitude of holiday-makers. "It's like a crowded reel of film. They're all here, amplified and magnified—social climbers, bluffers—look!"—as a slim and chocolate-eyed young man went by them—"that's a bogus Russian count—Palm Beach is full of bluffers. These girls there—Mary turned to look at some pert damsel—"they're gold diggers of the cleverest type. They'll land their wealthy fish, all right. And—as some stout, important little men came down the steps of an hotel—"these are the politicians. Lots of them about."

"And there's a movie star," cried Mary, gazing at a gorgeously bedizened woman, who looked very different, sartorially speaking, from the severely simple styles of Palm Beach's inner circle.

"Oh, they're all here," said Philip. "Actresses and prize-fighters, pioneers, bush-whackers, dreamers, loafers, millionaires."

"It's fascinating," Mary answered. "The breeze doubly bluer—since this interview with Philip the breezes balmer—the sighing of the palms more dreamily romantic."

"These Spanish and Italian villas are almost more consistently Spanish and Italian than what one sees in Italy and Spain," commented Philip. "And isn't it marvelous how cleverly they make the buildings look old?"

Mary laughed. "They age" the buildings just as cleverly as they rejuvenate the men and women!" she retorted.

Committee in charge of program, Mrs. H. M. Stewart, Mrs. Joe Coy, organist, Miss Grace Miller, music.

Mrs. Charles Geisler entertained the Community Club at her home east of Zimmerman Wednesday afternoon. Sixteen members and friends were present.

Mrs. H. H. Stewart vice president presided at the meeting. Miss Lida Ferguson continued the story of her trip last summer begun at the September meeting of the club, giving a very vivid and enjoyable account of her visit to the Yellowstone National Park. Two piano solos were given by Miss Dorothy Geisler.

Refreshments of grapes and cake were served by Mrs. Stewart and Miss Lizzie Haverstick.

Two new names were added to the roll, Mrs. Elliott and Miss Mary Ater.

A query from a neighboring club as to "how the Zimmerman Community Club did things," etc., elicited the following ideas as to why this club has been able to accomplish so many things—First, the splendid Community Spirit shown by all. Second, the excellent team work or working together and third, the enthusiastic unselfish active service and devotion of the president, Mrs. H. C. Haverstick and her band of members.

The club will serve lunch at the Ralph Shoup sale Wednesday, Oct. 20.

Miss Mary Coy a student at Wilmington College, spent a recent week end with home folks.

Mrs. George Ferguson and Miss Lida Ferguson were callers at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Eldemiller and family near New Carlisle.

Mrs. Frank Barron spent several days with her father at Troy, the latter being ill.

Cliff Miller and family of near Yellow Springs attended Sunday School and Church here Sunday and were dinner guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stewart entertained at dinner Sunday, Rev. Eldemiller and family.

The Old-Order Church of the Brethren (Dunkard) will hold the Annual Communion Services Saturday evening Oct. 16 and Breakfast Sunday morning Oct. 17.

The Annual Communion Service at the Conservative Church of the Brethren Xenia Pike, will be held at 6 p. m. Saturday, November 6, and Sunday morning, November 7. A special service will take the place of the Sunday School and regular preaching hour.

PRESIDENT MORGAN PRAISES COUNTY LIBRARY SERVICE

President Arthur Morgan, Antioch College, has expressed his opinion of the inestimable value of county-wide library service to Greene County.

The following letter was sent entirely voluntarily by President Morgan to Mrs. W. M. Hardman, a member of the County Committee working in the interest of the County Library.

Antioch College,
Yellow Springs, O.
Office Of The President.
Mrs. W. M. Hardman,
Yellow Springs,

My dear Mrs. Hardman:—May I add my word to that of Mr. Nash in favor of a county-wide library district. I believe that for many boys and girls such a development might mean the remaking of their lives.

When I was a boy we had very few books in the home and very few of my associates cared to read. It was through our public library that I became interested in literature in general and came to have an outlook wider than that of the immediate community. I feel that that little library furnished me the one chance I ever had as a boy to get acquainted with great minds. Without it I doubt whether I would ever have had any interest beyond those of our immediate community.

Not only would your book-wagon furnish entertainment and information to people over the county, but now and then it might awaken the mind of some boy or girl whose service to his community might be worth more than all your library district would ever cost. Seldom has a county government considered a service to its people more important than this.

Sincerely,
Arthur E. Morgan,
President.

DOG HAS TO WALK, SHE SUES

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—Miss Marjorie Manger's pedigreed Boston bull terrier, "Teddy," rolls at will in the luxurious rugs of the fashionable Embassy apartments here. His mistress continues to take him up and down in the passenger elevator in spite of an ultimatum which the owners of the exclusive building have issued that Teddy must tag his rides in the freight elevator.

No dogs are allowed in the place at all, according to the leases, but ever since a disturbing incident there last January, the regulation has not been enforced and Teddy has been having a lovely time riding in the elevators and all that sort of thing.

The disturbing incident occurred when Miss Manger and her dog, Teddy, boarded an elevator to go to her sixth floor apartment. The negro elevator boy reminded her of the rule and not only refused to operate the elevator but also refused to permit Miss Manger to do so.

Now Miss Manger is one of the society girls of St. Louis, and no mere elevator lad of color can dispute such a matter with her. A scuffle ensued for possession of the elevator lever. Miss Manger alleges that the boy struck her. The result is a $20,000 damage suit against the owners of the building which is to come up for trial here this fall.

One victory has already been won by Miss Manger. She and her mother remain in the apartment with Teddy, the terrier, and because of Miss Manger's valiant stand for dogs' rights, elevator operators have ceased to snub canines.

Just as "pigs is pigs" so "dogs is dogs" now at the Embassy apartments.

TROTSKY ADMITS POLITICAL DEFEAT IN STALIN HANDS

Repudiate Acts In Party Split And Dissolve Faction

MOSCOW, Oct. 18.—Leon Trotsky has publicly admitted his complete political defeat at the hands of Joseph Stalin.

Trotsky and the entire leadership of the opposition, including Zinoviev, Kamenev, Rykoff, and Yevdokimov, have issued a signed declaration repudiating their actions tending to split the party and confessing that they violated party discipline.

The political penitents, while stating that they continue to hold their individual views, announce they will dissolve their factional organization and "conditionally subordinate themselves to the decisions of the communist congress and the central committee."

They call on all of their supporters to follow their lead.

The surrender of Trotsky and his followers, incidentally, perhaps, the first surrender Trotsky has ever made, is a great victory for Stalin and increases his prestige tremendously.

Trotsky and his associates are expected to voice their views in the communist congress, but as soon as they are outvoted, they will accept the majority and cease activity in opposition, an activity which at times seems to threaten the solidity of the communist party.

KENTUCKY CHIEF SHOT AT PINEBURG

PINEBURG, Ky., Oct. 18.—City authorities here today were bending every effort to locate the slayer, or slayers, of Police Chief Robert Woolam, who was shot to death here early yesterday morning.

Chief Woolam, bleeding from three wounds, died before he could tell William Davis, taxi driver and the first person to reach his side, his assailant's name.

Woolam, who had been chief for slightly more than a month, was voted that office at a meeting of the city council which was featured by the presence of masked members of the Ku Klux Klan.

He was said to be a popular officer and no motive for the crime had been uncovered early today.

NOT GOOD MOTHER; KILLS THREE, SELF

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Because she said she had not been a good mother to her children, Mrs. Edna May Chamberlain gave deadly poisons to her three young sons—Edwin, 9; Delia, 7; and John, 4—and then ended her own life in a gas-filled room.

While waiting for the deadly fumes to take effect, the mother wrote: "This is horrible, most horrible; but I couldn't let the children, for whom I was responsible, live in a world for which I had failed to prepare them."

MURDER FOLLOWS PARTY; HOLD TWO

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—George Lye, 37, was shot and killed early today and his wife, Dorothy, 25, locked in a closet by the slayer following a card party at their home, according to the police. The slayer and his companions escaped.

Two women guests are being held for questioning, while police are searching for the slayer and four other men present at the party.

CLEVELAND GIRL MARRIES VIOLINIST

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—Duel de Kerekjarto, Hungarian violinist, and his bride, who was Miss Marguerite Luella Kaase, of Cleveland, were en route to New York today by motor on a honeymoon trip.

The couple was married here last night by Dr. A. B. Meldrum, at Old Stone Presbyterian Church, with Rosa Pohlske as the bride's attendant. Kerekjarto and the singer gave a concert an hour before the wedding.

WEEK-END TOLL

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—Three persons, one a negro, were killed in week end traffic accidents, police announced today. Mrs. Mary Adams, 68, Charles Owens, 32, St. Bernard, O., and Thomas Johnson, negro, were killed in the different mishaps.

MARIE'S SCHEDULE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Here is the schedule which Queen Marie of Roumania will follow today from the time of her arrival at Quarantine until her departure for Washington.

9 a. m.—Official welcoming boat Macom leaves Pier A, Battery, with committee for Leviathan, anchored at Quarantine.

9:45 a. m.—Greetings of United States and New York City extended to queen. Salute of twenty-one guns from Governor's island.

11:15 a. m.—Queen arrives at city hall after parade up Broadway from Battery.

12:00—Mayor Walker formally greets Queen Marie in city hall and gives her freedom of city. Proceeds broadcast by WNYC.

12:30 p. m.—Royal party leaves city hall for Pennsylvania station.

1:00 p. m.—Queen leaves on special train for Washington.

MAZER SUES CANTON NEWS FOR LIBEL BY ACTION OF COUNSEL

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—Another move on the part of attorneys for Louis Mazer to secure state's evidence in advance of the murder trial of their client was made when Mazer filed suit for $50,000 against the Canton Daily News, charging libel.

Amerman and Mills and Fetterman filed the suit on behalf of Mazer.

Mazer is now in the Stark County workhouse awaiting trial on an indictment for first degree murder in connection with the killing of Don R. Mellett.

An attempt earlier in the week on the part of Mazer's attorneys to obtain the state's testimony through depositions in another civil case failed, when this suit, filed by Mrs. Florence E. Mellett against Mazer, Ben Rudner and Pat McDermott, murder defendants, was withdrawn.

Still another attempt to question important witnesses came when Attorney E. L. Mills, and David E. Kramer, who represent Mazer, presented an application for an order to take the depositions of Steve Kaschok and Peggy Cavanaugh, important witnesses for the state.

The witnesses are held in the workhouse in default of heavy bonds and state laws provide that depositions may be taken where witnesses in a criminal case are in prison.

Under the law, as soon as service has been had in a civil action, either of the parties may begin to call witnesses and take depositions.

"This is just another move in the fishing expedition which attorneys for the defendants in the murder case have started," said former Judge Hubert C. Pontius, attorney for the Canton Daily News.

Before service of summons in the libel suit had been made, Amerman and Mills sought to serve notice upon Pontius for the taking of depositions on October 19. Pontius refused to accept service. Likewise when the deputy sheriff sought to make service on Charles E. Morris, publisher of the Canton Daily News he also refused to accept the service.

Their reasons for declining to accept were not stated but it was intimated that the validity of the filing and its purpose will be challenged.

FOUR GANGSTERS HELD IN CHICAGO MURDER PROBE

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—While authorities were investigating a new gang today, a quartet of famous gangsters whose names are high on the list of "who's who" in Chicago's beer and alcohol industry were lolling in cells at the county jail.

They are: Vincent "Schemer" Drucel, partner of the late Earl Weiss, whose career was cut short by machine-gun bullets; Vincent McBriane, brother of Frank McBriane, South Side gang leader, under arrest awaiting trial for murder; Julian "Potatoes" Kaufman, and Harry Sorg, henchmen of the North Side syndicate.

All four of the men were arrested over the week-end in Chief of Police Collins' drive to "round up" all known gangsters.

The latest gang killing to engage the attention of police occurred early yesterday. A man believed to be John Dano, a Sicilian, was "taken for a ride," and shot to death and flung from the speeding automobile.

TINNEY CRITICAL

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—Frank Tinney, comedian of Earl Carroll's Vanities, again hovered at the point of death today, following a serious relapse.

A comedian has been in St. Mary's hospital for three weeks, suffering from the effects of two broken ribs, which were fractured in a fall from a taxicab.

Queen Marie Of Roumania Arrives In America Accompanied By Children; Enthused On Visit

QUEEN MARIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Queen Marie of Roumania enjoyed her first glimpse of America when the liner Leviathan, bearing the royal party from Cherbourg, arrived at Quarantine at 6:15 this morning. The great liner took on a pilot at five o'clock this morning, the queen signed happily.

"We are here. I am so glad!" Although the queen is fully aware of the heavy program mapped out for her later today after she lands in New York, her conversation with her children on deck this morning was all of that first sight of America, for which she had waited and planned for nine years.

The queen's first view of America was somewhat obscured by a fog which hung over the harbor. A cold, steady rain fell during the early forenoon.

While the royal travelers were watching through the dawn, the royal suite was a scene of confusion as the queen's retinue attended to the last-minute duties of packing the fifty or sixty trunks, suitcases or handbags which must be unloaded at Quarantine when the royal party goes ashore.

Much of the queen's last evening on board ship was spent in presenting gifts among the Leviathan's crew as tokens of her voyage. To Commodore Herbert Hartley, commander, Queen Marie presented a large photograph of herself in full court dress, wearing her crown and jewelry. The photograph, especially autographed for Commodore Hartley, was mounted in a gold frame. It bore the inscription: "To Commodore Hartley" and across the lower portion of the photograph was written "Marie-Leviathan, 1926."

Princess Ileana, almost in tears at the prospect of leaving the ship, where she has had such a good time, presented a photograph of herself, similarly inscribed, to Commodore Hartley.

Photographs and presents were given to members of the crew who served the royal party. The queen

PRINCE NICHOLAS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The city, state and nation joined hands today in extending greetings to Queen Marie of Roumania and her two children, Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas.

The welcome will begin with the booming of twenty-one guns from Governor's island as the municipal boat Macom taken the royal party from the Leviathan to the Battery. Fire boats will fling columns of water in the air and airplanes will hum a welcome from overhead.

At the Battery, a fleet of motors will escort the royal guests to the city hall, where they will be extended the freedom of the city by Mayor James Walker. In the car with Queen Marie will be James Butler Wright, assistant secretary of state representing President Coolidge.

Thousands of office workers prepared to shower the queen with ticker tape from the windows of skyscrapers as the royal party moves up Broadway. Mounted police were detailed to hold crowds of curious thousands in check during the procession up Broadway and at the queen's departure for Washington, D. C. on a special train at 1:00 p. m.

Only one discordant note was expected at the queen's greeting. A meeting of the International Union of Workers to protest against the queen's reception here and that the "barbarous treatment" alleged to have been accorded the political prisoners of Roumania by the Roumanian government be investigated.

No serious disorder was anticipated, however.

Frances Stevens Hall To Take Stand For Defense

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, under indictment for the murder of her husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his "soul mate," Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, will take the stand in her own defense at her trial on November 3.

In making this announcement, Mrs. Hall declared she will face the ordeal of publicity in her fight against "murderous persecution."

"I don't want to go on the stand and I could do so," she said. "Every time I see my name spread across a newspaper or see my picture in print, it fills me with horror."

Mrs. Hall denounced Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson, who heads the reopened investigation into the case.

"When I take the stand, Prosecutor Simpson will have to change his tactics, deal with facts before a jury and stop his campaign of suspicions and insinuations in the newspapers," she declared. "I have nothing to conceal and am confident he will receive from the jury a rebuke richly deserved and New Jersey again will be a fit place for decent people to live in."

Simpson would not comment on this statement, stating, "My answer will come when the trial opens."

SENSATIONS ARE PROMISED IN REED SLUSH-FUND PROBE

Three Trails To Be Followed In Search For Evidence

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Fresh political sensations were promised here today as Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, reopened the senate's slush-fund inquiry into the recent "million-dollar Illinois senatorial primary."

Three subjects were to be investigated by Reed on his single-handed quest for new evidence of slush, political corruption and campaign terrorism in the recent primary, in which Frank L. Smith, former chairman of the Illinois public utilities commission, defeated Senator Wm. B. McKinley for the Republican nomination. They were:

1. The action of the Illinois Anti-Slavery League in endorsing Smith in the face of slush-fund disclosures that he had spent almost a half million dollars in the primary.

2. Rumors that motor transportation and bus companies contributed heavily to Smith's campaign fund while he remained chairman of the utilities commission, in addition to the $125,000 cash gift from Samuel Insull, public utility czar of the Mid-West.

"PEACHES" SEEKS GUARDIAN BEFORE SUING FOR DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Frances "Peaches" Heenan Browning made an application today in supreme court for appointment of her mother as guardian preparatory to a suit for separation against her middle-aged husband, Edward Browning, millionaire "Cinderella man."

Through her attorneys, the young bride, who recently left her wealthy husband, filed papers in the offices of the clerk of special term, part two.

The papers will be presented to Justice John M. Tierney late today.

"Now we'll have our turn in court," said Mrs. Catherine Heenan mother of "Peaches."

On Saturday, Browning secured the appointment at Poughkeepsie of M. Otis Rockwood, an attorney, as guardian for his girl-wife pending his suit for separation. Browning was in Newark, N. J., today on a mysterious visit.

Before leaving New York, he refused to reveal the purpose of his visit.

COMMUNITY CHEST PLANS FORMULATED FOR ORGANIZATION

Plans are crystallizing rapidly with respect to effecting permanent organization of a Community Chest in Xenia.

The Federated Parent-Teacher Association, at a recent meeting, formally indicated its willingness to join with other charitable organizations in conducting a joint campaign beginning October 31, according to Mrs. S. M. McKay, president.

Mrs. E. P. Hamlin and Mrs. Charles Adair have been named as the two P. T. A. representatives on a proposed committee which will be chairman of this committee.

Mayor John W. Prugh will appoint a chest executive committee which will have direct charge of the campaign of solicitation.

The P. T. A. is also engaged in working out a detailed report of expenses during the fiscal year, on which a budget for the coming year will be based. Entrance into the yearly chest drive will eliminate the separate campaign for funds conducted annually by the Federated P. T. A. for the Opportunity School.

The executive board of the Social Service League is to hold a meeting in the City Commission chamber Monday night at 7:30 o'clock to discuss the chest. Two delegates to the committee which in turn will name a chest executive committee, will also be named at this meeting if the proposition meets with favorable action. Arrangements for preparation of a budget for October, 1926 to October, 1927, will also probably be made.

Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, has already signified its intention of joining hands with the others in the drive but its formal entrance is dependent upon action the other two organizations take.

If present plans are carried out, only three organizations will participate in the drive this fall. Hopes of expansion are entertained, however, for 1927 when the Boys Scouts and Xenia Recreation Association may be invited to join.

WIFE OF SENATOR CALDER VICTIM OF BIG JEWEL THEFT

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Apparently without any clue, save a description of the three bandits, 1,200 detectives, under the personal direction of Commissioner McLaughlin, are making a citywide search today for the holdup men who escaped with $15,000 in jewels from an automobile containing Mrs. Wm. M. Calder, wife of former United States Senator Calder; their daughter, Mrs. Robert C. Lee; Mrs. Calder's sister, Mrs. Wm. W. Harlow; and the Calder chauffeur and his wife.

The party in the car were not held up but were kidnapped. After a wild ride of an hour through Brooklyn streets, the bandits finally dumped their victims out of their own car exactly in front of Commissioner McLaughlin's home. It was from the police head's apartment building that the frantic women called the police for help.

The three bandits were described as young, "looking like dope fiends."

RIVER PILOT DEAD

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—The body of James C. Holloway, 70, veteran Ohio river pilot, was forwarded to his Point Pleasant, W. Va., home for burial.

For more than fifty years Holloway has been a familiar figure along all Ohio river points. He died at a hospital here Saturday.

CLUB TO TOUR

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—The Dante lecture club of St. Xavier college will tour parts of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky during the winter and spring it was announced by the college here.

MINDING MOTHER

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—I was speeding, because the boss told me to hurry home," Hubbard Reynolds, 22, told Municipal Judge George F. Eyrich when arraigned in traffic court.

"And I never disobey the boss," he added.

"Who is your boss?" asked the court.

"My Mother," replied Reynolds.

"Best excuse in the world. I just saved you $5 and a week's driving suspension," said the judge.

BALANESCU TRIAL GIVES THRILLS TO BIG ATTENDANCE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—Expected sensational revelations by Dr. Otto Saphir, well known pathologist and instructor at Western Reserve University, concerning the "love potion" which it is charged caused the death of Dorothy Elizabeth Kirk, brought the largest crowd of women and men since the opening of the trial of Ernest "Frenchy" Balanescu to the court room today.

Two long lines extending up and down the corridors of the old court house struggled to cram into Judge Carl Weyand's tiny court room and it was found necessary to call in extra guards to hold the line back.

Testimony of Dr. Saphir and of Corner A. H. Hammond, who made an official autopsy following the death of Miss Kirk and on whose report the charge of manslaughter was brought against the medical student, will close the testimony for the prosecution, James C. Connell, prosecutor, announced.

REVOLTERS LEAVE SUN CHUAN-FANG FOLLOWING ROUTING

Shanghai Reported As Threatened By Inva- ding Troops

SHANGHAI, Oct. 18.—This city was a seething cauldron today as Shanghai was gradually being drawn into the war zone by the warring Chinese factions.

Following the rout of Sun Chuan-fang, war lord of Eastern China, and the action of Hsia Chow, civil governor of the province of Chekiang, who began a troop movement toward Shanghai, 3,000 Nanking revolvers withdrew their allegiance from Sun. This revolt was hastily checked when troops loyal to Sun in the Shanghai area organized and marched on the Nanking rebels.

After a skirmish, Sun's troops surrounded and captured the revolt. Sixty of the ringleaders were executed.

Word that Shanghai is threatened by invading Chekiang troops has caused an influx of Sun reinforcements to this city over the Nanking railway. Other troops were being rushed here to protect the Lungwha arsenal.

Cantonese troops were reported to be in full control in Hupeh today. General Chang Kai-shek, Cantonese dictator, has established his northern headquarters at Wuchang, which was captured from Sun Chuan-fang's army after a series of terrific battles.

His armies captured and disorganized, Sun, with his general staff, fled down the Yangtze river and is believed to be making his way to Nanking.

Following the loss of Wuchang to the Cantonese, Sun suffered another grievous loss when his river steamer Kianyang blew up as it steamed down the Yangtze, when ammunition aboard the vessel exploded. Twelve hundred of the 1,500 men aboard were either killed by the exploding shells or drowned when they leaped into the river.

The British river gunboat Bee also was fired on by the Cantonese troops, the dispatch said. The Bee returned the fire and the Chinese retired without causing any casualties aboard the Bee.

TRIES TO DROWN SON WHEN RACE HATRED OVERCOMES LOVE

By A. M. M. STRAND

LONDON, Oct. 18.—An intensely dramatic duel between mother love and race hatred is revealed by the attempted murder of her son by an English woman, Genevieve Parker.

This emotional tragedy began eight years ago when Genevieve became the mother of a baby boy whose skin was a golden-brown instead of white. That she loved the child who must later face the world terribly handicapped by the "taint of color" and the still more dreaded dual taint of color, is proved by the testimony of many witnesses.

In the meantime a secret hatred and shame of the child's dark race was tearing at her heart. The continuous consciousness of the sensation she created wherever she was seen with the boy and remorse for his sake as well as for her own, at length drove her to so frantic a pitch of agony that she could bear it no longer.

Taking the tiny lad on the pier at Southend, she caught him to her, kissed him passionately, pressed him to her breast and then suddenly hurled him into the surging waters beneath.

A man some distance away saw the child's terrible plunge and dived in. But it was not for some moments that he was able to reach the unhappy boy, who, with natural longing for life—and as yet had no inkling of how tormented his life might be—had struggled desperately to cling to the buttress of the pier.

When charged with attempted murder, Genevieve sobbed heartily, brokenly and was eventually carried unconscious out of court. A pathetic touch, as was later shown in court, lay in the fact that her dramatic arrest took place in front of the child, who struggled to free his mother from the policeman's grip.

Sobbed Genevieve to the police officer: "I don't know what I did! Perhaps I threw my boy over. I must have been ashamed of him."

GENEVIEVE PARKER

Genevieve's fate is at present undecided, but whether she spends years behind prison doors, or is an asylum for the rest of her life, she will be torn between her two ruling passions—a mother's love and the pride of race.

relief. I see him every so often still. He looks fifteen years older, his practice is gone, his family has disowned him and his daily ration is a quart of cheap brandy. Another man is one who speaks eight languages and was a college professor until he inherited some money and decided to live in Paris. We buried him a few weeks ago by public subscription. Not just booze and women, but the paralysis that seems to attack the nerve of mental activity after a few months of Paris, just as it saps the moral code, caused his downfall.

I once warned a father who contemplated sending his nineteen-year-old son alone to Paris, to complete his studies. "Pooh!" he answered. "Fred isn't that sort, and anyway, I believe in letting a boy sow a few wild oats—makes him more of a man."

For all that, nothing scorched is quite as good as new.

Texas "Knows" Paris. Bill Hogg turned up the other day in his usual casual manner. Bill Hogg is a Texan with one of the finest flats in New York who knows Europe better than many Europeans.

You never see him in Citro's or other resorts flooded by Americans. A far more likely place to find him is a certain tiny restaurant far away in the unexplored St. Paul quarter where the fat and pleasant-faced patron greets Hogg as an old friend and gets a millionaire's wise advice on her small investments.

Or you might find Bill in a little village at the foot of the Alps, where "Monsieur l'Americain" is quite as much respected as "Monsieur le Maire" himself. Bill knows the name of every child in that village.

Why Patou is Worried. The fashion for plumper women is catching on, say the dressmakers. Jean Patou is horror-stricken. "When fat women become fashionable I shall quit the dressmaking business," he told me last night.

Friends of Patou will learn with pleasure that his health is much better since his long, enforced rest in the foothills of the Pyrenees.

A Secret Resort. Vichy, where rich men go to clean their livers, is slowly emptying and Leonard Replogle, Barney Baruch and others who carefully kept their names from the hotel registers there have left, cured presumably, until next time.

MIRRORS OF PARIS
By BASIL WOON

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Frank Erne has gone back to America following a month or two spent looking up old friends in Paris, of which city he was a permanent resident before the war. The former lightweight, who looks like a retired banker now, found a few of his former cronies still alive.

These were the men who have learned how to live in Paris. There is a saying among the oldtimers that if a man can live five years in Paris without becoming a hopeless drunkard or pauper he has a good chance to remain until a ripe old age.

It is now nearly ten years since I came to Paris to live there permanently and I have watched a goodly procession of men go down the road and over the hill to the pauper's lodging house and the potter's field.

Too Easy to Live. It takes stamina to stand the gaff of Paris. For Paris is an easy place to live in—too easy. Americans who work here are mostly representatives of American concerns and no boss' eagle eye is there to scan the clock when they enter and leave the office.

The few who are married have the bulwark of the home behind them, but the counter attraction of Maxim's and Montmartre is strong. In 1915 we were four American newspapermen among the many "covering" the peace conference. All of us were married. Of the four I am the only one who still has the same wife and that may be because my wife had greater stores of patience than the others, for in these days I wasn't exactly addicted to carpet slippers and the parlor fire.

Haven for Bachelors. But the majority of Americans in Paris are bachelors. Bachelors as far as the law is concerned, anyway. Numbers of them are young. And if, as Bob Service said, "When a girl's sixteen and as poor as she's pretty" she's as safe in Paris city as a lamb night-strayed where the wild wolves roam." It is as well to know that Paris can be quite as dangerous to the young American struggling for a foothold here.

The first week or so is a delirium of finding diggings, seeing the sights, learning a few stock phrases of French. A city of adventure... * * * * *

Yanks Live at Bars. And then creeps in humanity's insidious enemy: Monotony. You find that Paris can be cold as well as friendly, cheerless as well as gay. Cooped up in your boarding-house room you feel too restless to read or sleep, anxious to drink or spend money but actually with no choice to do otherwise.

The American world of Paris meets in the bar-rooms—the Ritz, Henry's, Harry's New York, Jack Bushy's, Jack's on the Rue, Port Mahon, the Dome and Rotunde in the Latin quarter.

Because you are sure to hear your own language and find the companionship you crave you begin to visit these bars.

And it is then that your head needs to be steady, your heart sound.

Some Examples. There was the young lawyer who came to Paris in 1922 to open a branch of his father's law office. He was a fine, clean young fellow, but he had to have friends he could talk to. He couldn't lead a solitary life. By and by he met a girl. She wasn't the right kind for a boy like him and he turned to the bars for RHEUMATISM!

What is it—anyway?

THAT awful agony of swollen joints and inflamed muscles—that miserable pain and torturous suffering, we call rheumatism—what is it?

Here's what it is: It is the result of waste products and impurities in the blood! Impurities that get the upper hand because the system is starving for want of healthy, rich, red blood!

But you just cleanse your blood and build up the red-blood-cells and watch the rheumatism vanish! Why, S. S. S. will aid Nature put so many millions of red-blood-cells in your system that the impurities that cause your rheumatism are driven out—they can't stand pure, healthy blood.

S.S.S. conquers rheumatism! The rich, red, fighting blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build brings ease and comfort to every sore, swollen tissue in your body.

And this great S. S. S. goes right on helping Nature build more and more red cells until your whole body is tingling with life and vibrating with vim, vigor and vitality. You feel like yourself again.

Get S. S. S. right now—build up your blood to where it is pure, red and healthy. S. S. S. is the sure way. All druggists sell S. S. S. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

LOCAL WOMEN ATTEND

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION
Xenia and Greene County will be well represented at the state convention of the W. C. T. U. which opened in Steubenville Monday and will continue until Friday.

Mrs. Carrie L. Flatter, president of the Greene County W. C. T. U. and Mrs. M. R. Spodgrass, state superintendent of health for the organization and Mrs. William McCall, of the McClellan Union, left Xenia Friday preparatory to attending the convention. Mrs. Flatter and Mrs. Spodgrass both spoke in Cambridge Sunday in the interest of the Anti-Cigarette Alliance and went from that city to Steubenville. Mrs. McCall visited over the week-end with Mrs. Mary L. Collins, former Xenian, at Chester, W. Va., and will accompany Mrs. Collins, who was formerly president of the Greene County union, to Steubenville.

The party which went to Steubenville Monday was composed of: Mrs. W. O. Custis and Mrs. William Smith, of the A. C. Turrell Union; Mrs. Walter Davis, president of Xenia Union; Mrs. Ray Spahr, president of the South Side Union; Mrs. J. H. Harris, representing Effie Carter Union; Mrs. Lucy Barber, Cedarville and Mrs. John Funderburg, Yellow Springs.

Among speakers at the convention will be Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the M. E. Church and J. F. Burke, of Ellyria.

NEWSPAPER WOMEN

TO MEET IN AKRON

The Ohio Newspaper Women's Association will hold its twenty-sixth annual convention in Akron, Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday, October 23, 24 and 25. The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company will be hosts at a dinner Friday evening, followed by a theatre party. The opening business session will be held Saturday morning, and a feature of this session will be an address by Allene Sumner, N. R. A., on "Writing for Millions." Miss Pauline Smith of Columbus, president, will give her address.

The prize contest luncheon will take place at noon, when announcement will be made of the winners in the contests conducted by the association during the year. Mrs. Charles L. Knight and Mrs. John S. Knight will be hostesses at a tea at the former's home at 4:30 and greetings will be extended by C. L. Knight, owner and editor of the Akron Beacon-Journal. Dinner at the Women's City Club and an evening party at which Mrs. Marjorie McClure, novelist will be presented will conclude the day.

Mrs. Grace Z. Brown will direct her own play, "Bumblebee's Scoop," and the $100 prize winning editorial will be read.

A prominent Akron citizen will be host at a breakfast at the Portage Country Club Sunday morning, when a report of the clearing house committee of which John MacKee of Springfield is chairman will be given. Group conferences will also be held.

MISS LINDSEY GOES TO CINCINNATI FOR STUDY

Miss Ann Marie Lindsey, who for the past three years has been in charge of the violin department at the Xenia Music Studios in the Allen Bldg., is spending the winter in Cincinnati where she has gone for further study. She is taking work at the University of Cincinnati and the Conservatory of Music where she is to receive her Bachelor of Music degree in June. She also has charge of the violin departments in several of the Cincinnati public schools.

She has been fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. Oscar Valentine from the Conservatory, to take charge of her classes here during her absence. Mr. Valentine is a talented violinist, a conscientious teacher and is said to be well fitted to carry on the work.

Miss Lindsey has worked faithfully and untiringly and has done much to further the cause of better music in Xenia, and also in Jamestown, where she was music supervisor last year. She will be greatly missed and warmly welcomed on her return by her many friends and pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. James Devoe of the Nash Road entertained the following guests Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buck, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hisey, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Leonard, and Miss Hilda Devoe, of Xenia, and Mr. Walter Leonard, of Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Whinery and Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Robinson, of Sabina, spent Sunday in Xenia as the guests of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. John Baughn, W. Market St.

Mr. and Mrs. John McClellan, Washington, D. C., arrived in Xenia Friday for an extended visit with relatives. They are now the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McClellan of the Lower Bellbrook Pike.

Mr. Charles Peters has resigned his position with the McDorman-Crawford Company here, and has gone to Chicago where he has secured employment with Wilson Brothers. He began his work there Monday.

A Woman's Battle

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling bugles to cheer her on, no waving banners. Often she becomes discouraged for ill health is a powerful foe to contend with.

For more than half a century, women have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a faithful ally in their struggle for better health.

Have you become discouraged by the same struggle? Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a chance to be your ally, too.

D. A. R. WILL MEET

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles. Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safest method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take and can always be found at Sayre's drug store who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer. adv

GOLDEN WEDDING

IS CELEBRATED

Surrounded by their children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cronin, Maple St., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Connor, on N. Detroit St., where dinner was served to a company of fifty at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

In compliment to the honor guests, the color arrangement was gold and white, chrysanthemums and dahlias in profusion being used about the rooms and in artistic arrangement on the two long tables. A bride's cake, iced in gold centered the bridal table at which there were covers laid for Mr. and Mrs. Cronin and members of their family; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cronin and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cronin of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Reynolds of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Downes of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. John Cronin and Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor, the host and hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Cronin are well known residents of Xenia, where they have made their home for twenty-five years. Their marriage took place in New Paris, O., where Mrs. Cronin who was formerly Miss Nora Egan was born and reared. Mr. Cronin was born in Ireland, but was reared in Boston, going to St. Paris to make his home as a young man.

He was recently retired after many years of service with the Pennsylvania Railroad company and is on the honor roll of the railroad. Among the out-of-town guests attending the celebration were Mrs. Cronin's only brother, Mr. John Egan of Greenfield, Ind., and his daughter, Miss Ethel Egan; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of New Paris, and Mrs. Catherine McCabe of Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoog and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Herr of Xenia were the only local guests aside from members of the family.

J. F. F. CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Luttrell entertained members of the J. F. F. Club at a masquerade party at their home on W. Church St., Friday night. The guests arrived disguised in ghostly attire, and there were various Halloween features including a "gypsy" who read the fortunes of her patrons in their palms.

There were several contests and games for the enjoyment of the guests and prizes were awarded to Mr. Fred Pennewit and Mrs. Edna Graham. Pumpkin pie and coffee were served by the committee. The club will be entertained next month at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toms, Fairground Road.

ELEVENTH BIRTHDAY

CELEBRATED BY LAD

J. Warren Mason, young son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mason, south of Xenia entertained twelve of his boy friends at his home Saturday afternoon in celebration of his eleventh birthday anniversary. Because of the rain the weather was in the yard, which had been planned was converted into an indoor affair and the boys had a jolly time roasting wieners about a grate fire. A birthday cake with ice cream was also served and games helped to make the occasion very merry.

You probably know that Cod Liver Oil is the greatest flesh producer in the world.

Because it contains more Vitamins than any food you can get. You'll be glad to know that Cod Liver Oil comes in sugar coated tablets now, so if you really want to put ten or twenty pounds of solid, healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong, ask Sayre's Drug Store or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Only sixty cents for sixty tablets and if you don't gain five pounds in thirty days your druggist is authorized to hand you back your money.

Insist on McCoy's, the original and genuine.

THE REAL HALL OF FAME

It is the foolish practice of men to set up a grand marble building, call it "Hall of Fame", place stone images there and talk much of names.

Time answers for us all in this way, that of hundreds of supposedly famous men of the hour, scarcely one will be known in 20 years.

But this in itself means little.

There is a larger question than a name that lasts for awhile.

The vital fact turns on the work the man did or tried to do—and the man that works is the only man worth considering.

To find out what you can do best and go ahead and do it, whether it be mending shoes, or plowing, or sweeping the streets, or caring for your family by the sweat of your brow, is to make your life a success.

The man who pays his debts and earns his living in an honorable way is a success, no matter how small the field he plows.

The immigrant on the land, the woman who to feed her children sews shirts in a sweat-shop, the day laborer in the ditch, the fisherman hauling his nets far out at sea, the toiler, half-naked stoker deep down in the hold feeding the fires of the ship, the switchman at the lonesome crossing—are some of the world's real heroes, because they struggle with no thought of applause, no listening senates, no waltz-like music to make the blood tingle, no medals or prizes of office to spur them on.

These unnumbered millions would require a hall of fame as large as this earth itself.

The wife's smile, the caress of the orphan child, the beggar's blessing, a world of little things like these, take the place of "success" as the word is ordinarily used; and although the careless earth passes by its workers in the trenches, mines, farms and factories, and on the sea, these men are proving their right to live by earning bread from day to day.

NAVY DAY

The observance of Navy Day, Oct. 27, has been ordained for the promotion of practical patriotism. If its purpose is rightly understood and the activities of the navy fully known even the most confirmed pacifist can with good conscience support efforts to make our protection of the sea all it ought to be. It is not for war alone that the navy is maintained. It charts the seas, makes scientific investigations whose results are of immense benefit to humanity, and protects our ocean-borne commerce, to specify but a few of its important services. Without an adequate navy we could not maintain a merchant marine. Without a merchant marine this country would be dependent on ships under alien flags for the carriage of its wares.

Even as it is, American vessels transport only 30 per cent of our foreign commerce. We pay the freight on 70 per cent of our combined exports and imports to foreigners. Developing the navy, we may count on increasing our merchant marine and keeping at home considerable money that we now send abroad to pay freight bills. Would not the saving be somewhat worth while to credit to our navy?

Free traders might answer in the negative, but we do not think any practical patriot would. It is the free traders who object to the protective tariff because it keeps foreign goods out of unfair competition with the products of American works and American men. The more successful the American merchant marine, supported by the American navy, the less money we will pay to foreigners for transporting our exports and imports. And while there are no war-clouds hanging on the horizon and no probability of any war that might involve the United States, yet it is well to keep in mind that in event war ever does arise, our navy must serve as the first line of defense to protect our shores.

ONE WHO DID NOT CHANGE

With all the talk of debt cancellation filling the air and clouding the international atmosphere, one foreign statesman—and that one from a country where cancellation is most fervently urged—stands firm.

Three years ago the editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, sojourning in Paris, interviewed Raymond Poincare, then as now, premier of France. M. Poincare said in part:

"France never has for a single moment thought to escape from her obligations contracted during the war. France never has dreamed of repudiating her signature."

A week ago the premier made another statement on the same subject. Much had happened in the intervening years; many cabinets had been formed in France, and broken up again.

But the Poincare of 1926 is the Poincare of 1923.

"France has never disclaimed a debt. She is no less determined in the future to discharge obligations loyally to the whole extent of her facilities."

PARENTS SCORED

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—Parents, asleep to the home and outside life of their children, are awakened by the sound of officers dragging the unfortunate youngsters into juvenile court the Ohio Welfare Conference was told here recently.

It was also pointed out that the destitute homes do not furnish a majority of the minor delinquents, but that a large number of them come from the better class of homes.

A democratic process for the effective administration of public welfare may strike at the heart of nation's unrest, one of the speakers, discussing another phase of the welfare work, declared in advising governmental social control.

HONOR PLAYER

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—Billy Southworth, one of the stars of the 1926 World Series, as third baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals, who makes his home here, will be honored with a banquet sponsored by business men here Monday night, October 18.

Theater

Richard Bennett admits he is temperamental. Is there any well-known actor who would not admit it? This temperamental in Dick Bennett has not passed unnoticed as without a doubt, others, at intervals, have remarked about it. Remember the popular phrase "To pull a Dick Bennett."

What does temperamental actually mean? Some say it is "temper." Richard himself translates it as "Bennett was recently interviewed. "People say you are temperamental," the interviewer began.

"Of course they do," interjected Richard quickly. "People say a lot of things based on one side of the question. No one knows but those on our side of the footlights the torture of the giggling, coughing, talking, sneezing, foot-scuffing audience. We have worked like galley slaves for weeks, 'til we can barely stand, giving all that's in us, only to have our work destroyed by selfishness and stupidity. If we occasionally break loose under the strain they call it 'temperamental.'"

All of which means, according to Dick, that there are many things that upset an actor's nerves.

New method of face lifting. It was rumored that Scott Sidney, of "The Nervous Wreck," was planning a little rejuvenating stunt. Chester Conklin, director for Cecil De Mille studios, told Sidney the surgical process was superfluous—he had a better stunt. He shouted "Get into the set. There in the kitchen. Make violent love to Phyllis. Harrison Ford enter. Swat him under the chin and lift him clear out of the door and into the patio. And so—we'll give you a good face-lifting-free." The suggestion was overruled.

THE THEATRE

When the strong man comes to town. That's the essence of Harold Lloyd's next "show" for Famous Players. The strong man who bends an iron bar as easily as he blinks—with of course, the aid of the herculean disciple sells for only a dime, ten cents. Sounds funny, doesn't it?

When one seed proves productive there is no reason why another of the same family should not. Violet LaPlante, sister of Universal's clever blonde comedienne, Laura LaPlante, blossoms forth in "The Haunted Housestead," in the leading feminine role, opposite Fred Gilman.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

After breakfast
The sun is in the pantry,
The sun is on the stair,
It's dancing on the cellar door
And the tom-cat dozing there.

It shines my copper kettles,
It polishes my range,
And makes my drab dish-washing
Seem something crystal strange.

For through the kitchen window
It shines across the pan,
Building a thousand rainbows
As sun and soap-suds can!

So why mind washing dishes
When breakfast hour is done,
With hands submerged in rainbows,
And heart submerged in sun!

Today's Talk

GROWING PAINS

Forever dissatisfied! To say that of a person, or to apply it to yourself, at first sounds as though a pessimistic note had been struck. On analysis, however, you learn that such a person is just creeping into his larger self, just finding himself, getting his growing pains. There is great hope for the man or woman who is forever dissatisfied.

One reason why greatness is so rarely appreciated in its time and age is that the one to whom it later comes through sincere recognition, was so deeply buried in his own desires for the rendering of worth in the world that he placed little value on his own efforts toward greatness. For no man is great who thinks himself great.

All through the dark nights of dissatisfaction and disappointment the really great man bears his growing pains and awaits the morning.

The youth whose legs and body ache, he knows not why, will some day live to understand. And the grown man whose aches run to his heart and through the paths of his brain, also will live to understand that growth can come only through suffering and a hungering and thirsting after that which gives satisfaction.

Each life must have a standard. No one else can place that standard. You must place it for yourself. It must be your priceless possession. And although the colors of this standard may at times drop, it must never be allowed to trail the dust.

Don't mind the pains of disillusionment, of lost opportunities, of blunders committed, of betrayed trust, or of loneliness of spirit. Bear bravely for all these pains convert themselves into growing pains that give you strength for the larger tasks of life, which are the only ones that count anyway.

But if you see another person going through this process, trot over and give him a pat on the back, or press his hand, or climb into his heart where it is warm!

CONTINUING CABIN BUILDING

"The roof, and sometimes the floor of the cabin of the newly wedded pioneer couple, was finished on the same day of the raising. A third day was commonly spent by a few carpenters in leveling off the floor, making a clap-board floor and a table. This last was made of a split slab and supported by four round logs set in auger holes.

"Some three-legged stools were made in the same manner. Some pins stuck in the logs at the back of the house supported a few clap-boards which served for shelves for the table furniture. A single fork placed with its lower end in a hole in the floor and the upper end fastened to a joist, served for a bedstead, by placing a pole in the fork with one end through a crack between the logs of the wall.

"This front pole was crossed by a shorter one within the fork, with its outer end through another crack. From the front pole, through a crack between the logs of the end of the house, the boards were put on which formed the bottom of the bed.

"Sometimes other poles were pinned to the fork a little distance above these, for the purpose of supporting the front and foot of the bed, while the walls were the supports of its back and head. A few pegs around the wall for the display of the coats of the women and hunting shirts of the men, and two small forks or buckhorns to a joist for the rifle and shotpouch, completed the carpenter work.

"In the meantime masons were at work. With the hard pieces of timber of which the clapboards were made, they made billets for chinking up the cracks between the logs of the cabin and chimney—a large bed of mortar was made for daubing up those cracks; a few stones formed the back and jambs of the chimney."

BELLBROOK

Hon. George H. Thorne, candidate for Common Pleas judge, spent Sunday with his many friends here.

Bellbrook lost to Beavertown Sunday by a score of 6 to 3. The second game of the series will occur at Beavertown, Sunday, Oct. 17.

Harry Every and family, of near Xenia, were Sunday guests of Joseph Avey and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Raper and daughter, of St. Louis, are visiting Mr. Raper's father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Raper.

George Van Camp will make public sale of his personal farm property on Wednesday, October 27.

Cora Dogget, Louise Berryhill and Kenneth Huston are attending Miami-Jacobs Commercial School at Dayton. Roland Klinger, of the village is a member of faculty. It is reported that the institution has the largest attendance in its history—about five hundred being enrolled. Teacher training and other professional courses are now offered.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McGinnis of Waynesville are visiting near-relatives in the village.

C. F. Mills, Charles Kilian Thomas Van Camp, George Van Camp and family and John Leapion were visitors in Lewisburg one day last week.

Reports from Mr. and Mrs. Oral Hess who are touring in the East and South are to the effect that Mrs. Hess was severely hurt in a fall from the automobile in which she was riding. They are now located in Washington, D. C.

NEW DISHES THIS WEEK

Baked Sliced Ham: Have the butcher cut one and one-half pounds of ham in a slice about one-half inch thick. Cover this with cold water, place on back of range and let merely soak (not cook) for one hour. Then drain, place the meat in a dripping pan, and cover it with a mixture of two tablespoons of flour, two tablespoons of brown sugar, a pinch of dry mustard-powder and a few grains of pepper. Dot with bits of fat and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven (350 to 450 degrees Fahrenheit).

Vegetable Hash: (This is a fine luncheon dish to serve after a dinner of corned beef, cabbage, potatoes and beets. It will be called for in Wednesday's menu). Mix together two cups of cooked cabbage, one cup of cooked white potatoes, one cup of cooked beets, one tablespoon of chopped raw onion, one quarter of a teaspoon of salt, two tablespoons of minced

OF
New York

By Jack O'Donnell

Ross Santee is winning fame and fortune in New York because he knows how to paint a wild mustang in action with a cowboy on its back. Years ago Santee laid down his palette at the Chicago Art Institute to answer the call of the wild. We went to Arizona and other western states and became a cowboy. But the artist in his soul cried aloud for expression. Often in the glow of the western sun he would sit on the steps of a ranch house and sketch his friends—cowboys and horses. Some of these sketches he sent East and Frazier Hunt, the magazine editor and writer; Wood Cowan, the cartoonist, and others. They saw evidence of genius in Santee's work and implored him to "come East." Santee did a few years ago and immediately his work gained recognition. Today he is successful.

But Santee's heart is still out on the plains. Every so often he bids Broadway goodbye and goes back to his horses and sagebrush.

Just before he left on his last trip he told me he couldn't "get used to New York." He said: "I like canyons, but not these that are made by the hand of man from steel and stone and concrete. I'd rather cross in front of a herd of stampeding cattle on a surefooted cow pony than cross Broadway during the theater rush hour."

I sometimes wonder which will win—the city or the plains. And having lived for many years in Santee's favorite country I'm inclined to bet on the plains.

Luther Clap Slavens, known in the mining camps of Arizona as "Lute," will never be what is called a New Yorker. "Lute" likes the open spaces. The granite canyons of Gotham cramp his style and give him a feeling of restriction. He likes New York when it is in one of its gay, mad moods; when prize fights, world's fairs or half-day bicycle races have the attention of the metropolitan. But when the holidays roll around Lute's thoughts go back to Globe, Tombstone or some other town in the cactus belt.

I had dinner with Lute on Columbus Day. He appeared restless and moody.

"Where would you like to be right now, Lute, if you weren't right here?" I asked.

"Down in Globe," he answered promptly. "I'd like to be out there where I know everybody and where everybody knows me. Globe's my idea of a friendly town. Why, if Johnny Houseman and I could get together with me playing my banjo and Johnny singing there isn't anything in Arizona we couldn't have. Arizona! That's a place to live."

Some day Lute will go back. The desert always calls until its sons return.

uncooked calary, a pinch of pepper and one half cup of hot water or left-over clear soup. Now melt two tablespoons of either butter or bacon drippings in a hot frying pan, add vegetable mixture, put on pan cover and let cook slowly without stirring for thirty-five minutes. Then fold one-half of the hash over the other half and serve at once.

Steamed Fruit Pudding: Mix together one-half cup of butter, one-half cup of granulated sugar, one beaten egg, two-thirds of a cup of molasses, one cup of sweet, cold milk, and two and one-half cups of flour sifted with five teaspoons of baking powder, one-third teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of ground nutmeg, and a pinch of ground ginger. Beat well, then stir in two cups of figs put through the food chopper, and one-third cup of dried currants dredged with one-half cup of additional flour. Turn the mixture into one large or two small buttered molds, tie on covers, and steam from one to two hours before serving, with any desired hot liquid sauce.

SPORTSMEN PLAN

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—The League of Ohio Sportsmen and the Ohio Chapter of the Izaak Walton League are planning to conservation program to be presented to the General Assembly of Ohio when they meet in January. This will be a program of general conservation including the propagation, distribution, and protection of fish and game, the development of State Parks, forest conservation and reforestation of waste lands, conservation and protection of water supplies. A joint committee has completed a draft of its program and is now ready to consider details.

Modish Mitzi ONLY MITZI SAW WHAT SHE WANTED TO SEE Jay V. Jav

It's evidently not going to stop raining to oblige Aunt Sophia at any rate. She'd like to go walking and perhaps visit a friend and show off her new blouse of metal broad with the scarf neckline. Even Aunt Sophia has her little vanities.

Polly looks out to see if the mailman is coming—she did expect at least one letter. Polly is wearing a separate blouse and skirt, too. The blouse is of black velvet and white georgette and it is worn with a satin skirt.

Eleanor looks vainly for the package that was surely going to be delivered this afternoon. Eleanor's blouse combines the chemise front with dolman sleeves and is the important half of an attractive afternoon costume.

Mitzi too thinks very well of the blouse and skirt combination and has just put herself into one. Having made herself beautiful she goes to the window to see if the Goofer isn't coming—and the Goofer rings the doorbell!

Wilberforce Smashes Way To Win Over Simmons

IMPROVED LOCAL SQUAD OUTPLAYS; VISITORS ALL WET

Richie Leads Parade With Two Touchdowns—Score 41-0

Simmons University came up from Louisville, Ky., to invade the domain of Wilberforce University in an inter-sectional game Saturday afternoon, and returned on the futile end of a 41 to 0 score.

It was a greatly improved and versatile Wilberforce eleven that outplayed, outplayed and out-generated Coach Parliash's team. Coach Graves' squad displayed a powerful offense that ripped through the line and skirted the ends for long gains in every period, piling up six touchdowns and five goals after touchdown to score a most crushing triumph over its traditional rival.

At no stage of the game was Simmons able to even temporarily halt the spectacular attack that swept through its ranks for consistent gains. The invading host, pitted a pitifully weak defense against the cleverly assorted plays of Graves' cohorts, threatened at no point of the contest.

Richie, flashy Wilberforce half-back, led the parade of scorers and gained almost two-thirds of the total yardage. Richie figured in almost every drive for a touchdown, scoring two himself.

With the contest hardly begun, a relentless march up the field, ended when Campbell went over for the first score in the initial quarter. Richie drop-kicked for the extra point.

Simmons succeeded in staving off further scoring in this period but was not so fortunate in the second quarter. Wilberforce backs ran more or less wild through a demoralized and disconcerted Simmons squad, Richie breaking through on the first play from the twelve-yard line for a touchdown. He then added the extra point. An eighteen yard pass, Richie to Calloway, produced the second and final touchdown of the period.

Coach Graves was good to his substitutes in the final half and many regulars were drawn out but the parade of scoring never slackened. Richie remained in the game and made a twelve-yard touchdown run in the third period, adding extra point a minute later.

Wilberforce continued to hover about the Simmons goal line in the final quarter piling up two more touchdowns, one on a fifteen-yard jaunt by Moore and a second on an eighty-yard dash by Campbell.

Richie easily stood head and shoulders above his mates on the offensive and his educated toe produced five points after touchdown during the course of the contest when a number of Wilberforce drives were halted for the moment. Richie dropped back and essayed field goals as the next best thing, but four attempts from various distances were unsuccessful.

Wufang Ward, Wilberforce back-field star, was missing from the lineup with an infected finger but his absence did not detract from the forceful superiority of his team's attack. The final half of the game was played in a driving rain.

Wilberforce is setting itself for another and more important inter-sectional combat next Saturday when it meets its traditional enemy, Lincoln University at Philadelphia, Pa.

FOOTBALL SQUAD INITIATED WITH EAGLES CLASS

Members of Tilton's football squad composed part of the class of fifty which was initiated by the Xenia Aerie of Eagles, Sunday evening.

The class, which was the largest ever taken into the local aerie, was named in honor of M. O. Burns of Hamilton, grand worthy president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The initiation ceremonies were followed by a banquet at the Eagles building.

Past Grand Worthy President Eldon Hayes, of Wilmington made a short address to the new class in which he spoke of the achievements and aims of the Eagle lodge. A new drive for an Armistice Day class was started at the Sunday night meeting. Over 100 persons were present at the initiation ceremonies and banquet.

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE DEFEATED BY JERRY KATHERMAN'S SQUAD

Capital University, mentored by Jerry Katherman, former Central High coach, turned in one of the largest inter-collegiate scores of the season in defeating Cedarville College 52 to 0 Saturday afternoon at Columbus.

The Lutherans rambled at will through Coach Borst's team, scoring eight touchdowns, two in each period, and adding four goals from touchdowns.

THIRTY THREES AND COLUMBUS TIE IN LISTLESS GAME

Visitors Advance In Latter Part; Tilton Fumbles Cost

Tilton's "Thirty-Threes" and Columbus Bakeries swept up and down Cincinnati Ave., Park Sunday afternoon, in a listless contest featured by loose handling of the ball, the game ending with the teams hopelessly deadlocked in a 6 to 6 tie.

Taken as a whole, honors were about even although the Bakeries gained consistently through the Tilton line late in the game.

Two blocked kicks gave the locals their one chance to score in the first period. With the ball on its forty-five yard line Columbus elected to kick, but several tacklers broke through and blocked the boot, the Columbus back finally covering the ball on his fifteen-yard line with a loss of thirty yards.

Once more he essayed to punt out of danger but again the line weakened and the kick was blocked. Bales, substitute guard, picking up the ball and running ten yards for a touchdown. Paul Fuller's drop kick in an effort to add the extra point was wide by inches.

Columbus scored its single mark with the first half of its last legs when B. Hodapp plucked a pass from his brother, J. Hodapp, out of the air and dashed thirty yards for a score, shaking off several prospective tacklers in the jaunt. Patterson's place kick was blocked.

Tilton's held the ball a greater part of the first period but tossed away numerous opportunities through loose handling of the ball. As a matter of fact, frequent fumbles stopped the offensive of both teams.

Columbus made several long advances particularly in the closing stages of the game but numerous penalties stopped the visitors when they came within striking distance of the goal.

Patterson, Columbus fullback, was almost unstoppable, and several brave drives for scores in the second half, were mainly due to this fleet player. Columbus did not essay an attacking role until late in the second quarter but thereafter the bulk of play was in the Tilton's half of the field. Neither team seemed able to launch a sustained drive.

Tiltons gave promise early in the contest of driving through to a victory but the offense collapsed at crucial points. The local eleven seems not to have found itself yet this season as the style of play lacks that coordination and precision that goes hand in hand with all winning combinations. D. Fuller was an offensive star with Halder putting up an excellent defensive game.

The team must improve considerably during practice this week in order to have a chance to defeat the Springfield Bulldogs next Sunday afternoon at Cincinnati Ave., Pa. The contest will begin at 2 o'clock.

Tiltons will meet at the Eagles Hall Tuesday night at 7 o'clock for practice.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

Well, the Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus is to have a radio broadcasting station of its own soon. Each program will open with the singing of "The Stars and Stripes Forever"—the prisoners' song.

You must tune in on some Tuesday evening, when No. 6798-4 is talking on "Sparks From the Electric Chair," or "Why Pay Rent, When You Can Have a Home of Your Own for from One to Twenty Years Without a Cent of Cost to You?"

ONE PRISONER SPEAKS

All I had to do
Was murder my wife
To get to live
In here for life.

Instead of sentencing law violators to prison, a more severe punishment might be to sentence them to listen in on penitentiary programs daily for from one to twenty years.

If you want to know what I think about it, I don't see any reason why there should be a radio station from the pen, but I do know of a few radio announcers, singers, accordion players and the like, that I would like to see in there.

NO MORE WORRIES

When he went to prison,
Said Jericho Pratt,
"Now at night's my wife
Will know where I am at."

The station will be fine for announcing missing persons. For instance, anyone knowing whereabouts of Prisoner No. 234,678,895 last seen walking from prison farm, please report same to Warden Thomas.

All sporting events will probably be announced, including electrocutions, elocutions, etc. Which reminds me of the fellow who, when asked if he had anything to say just as he was being strapped in the electric chair, said, "I would like to give my seat to a lady."

LISTEN IN

Every man who talks,
Except the warden
Will start his speech
With the words, "Beg pardon."

The purpose of the station, according to Chaplain Reed, will be to give the public a correct idea of the prisoner's aim in life. That's not necessary. Everyone knows his aim—it is to get out of that place and stay out.

Safe-cracking and what it means to you will be discussed on one of the programs. By the way, if you want to buy a good radio set, bargains are offered in ads on this page from time to time. If you have one for sale, phone an ad to-morrow. Phone 111.

OVER THE RADIO

Men who robbed
And did it real
Now our joy and Peace will steal.

JAMES H. M'MILLAN DIES AT CEDARVILLE FUNERAL MONDAY

James H. McMillan, 62, well known Cedarville business man, died at his home there Saturday night at 10:30 after having been seriously ill for only 24 hours. Heart weakness brought on by intestinal trouble resulted in his death. He had been in poor health for a year.

Mr. McMillan had been engaged in business in Cedarville for thirty-two years, as a funeral director and furniture dealer. More recently he was interested also with his son Melvin, in the cement contracting business. He was born on a farm near Cedarville, and was the son of James Q. and Isabel Harrison McMillan.

Surviving are his widow, Mary J. Caldwell McMillan and three sons: Melvin of Cedarville; Joseph of Cleveland and James, living at home. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church in Cedarville where funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. W. P. Harriman, the pastor.

"I'll not comply with the order," Hall shouted at the judge. "The girl is not in the state now, and I'm not going to tell you where you can find her."

"I'll rot in jail before I surrender Grace Angela to her mother," Hall fairly screamed at the judge.

"Very well, then, rot," was the judge's calm answer, and ordered the sheriff to take Hall to the county jail.

Hall's first move in jail was to go on a hunger strike. Failure to take food soon weakened his condition until he could not do jail chores. Later he was bedfast. No effort was made to force Hall to eat.

"I'll not comply with the order," Hall shouted at the judge. "The girl is not in the state now, and I'm not going to tell you where you can find her."

"We'll see about that," answered the judge. "You are under arrest for contempt. I order you to jail to remain there until you comply with court's order."

"I'll rot in jail before I surrender Grace Angela to her mother," Hall fairly screamed at the judge.

"Very well, then, rot," was the judge's calm answer, and ordered the sheriff to take Hall to the county jail.

Hall's first move in jail was to go on a hunger strike. Failure to take food soon weakened his condition until he could not do jail chores. Later he was bedfast. No effort was made to force Hall to eat.

HOME CADET BAND WELCOMED AT HOME AFTER TRIP EAST

Displaying as much enthusiasm as when they departed members of the cadet band of the O. S. and S. O. Home, with Superintendent T. E. Andrews and Prof. H. E. Seall, their director, returned Saturday night from the East after attending the national convention of the American Legion, in Philadelphia.

The band paraded through the center of the city after arriving in Xenia, before going to the Home where a rousing welcome awaited it.

The young musicians took part in the nine-mile parade of the American Legion through Philadelphia streets and also participated in the short parade of the Forty and Eight Society. "I was very proud of the boys," said Col. Andrews, "They never faltered or showed the least weariness throughout the long marches, although at the end of the Legion parade their feet were blistered, the drummers had blisters on their hands and the other musicians had cracked and swollen lips. They displayed as much 'pep' when they passed the reviewing stand as when they started." Col. Andrews marched with his boys the entire line of march.

The boys were taken to Washington, Valley Forge and other interesting places in the capital. They visited the Sesqui-Centennial exposition and played at the opening of the convention of the Women's Auxiliary.

The band made the trip to Philadelphia on the Ohio American Legion special from Columbus.

BAD NEWS ON STOCK MARKET NOT TRUE EXPERTS DECLARE

According to the Wall Street Journal pessimists and professional speculators have spread propaganda in relation to the general business situation and have tried to make it appear that this country is in a business depression. "Pessimistic talk and raids on the stock market by professional bears should not make or change values in securities. Dependable barometers of business contradict their propaganda. General business throughout the country has been more than maintained," according to the Journal.

The report shows car loadings, one of the best barometers, are exceeding the one million mark per week and have done so seventeen weeks of 1926, to September 18, making a new high record.

Bank clearings, also a good business indicator, have shown steady and increased volume.

The automotive industry is prosperous. This reflects general prosperity and the increased buying power of the entire country. In the first six months of 1926 there were produced in the United States and Canada 2,449,184 motor passenger cars and trucks against 2,186,059 in the corresponding period of 1925—a record production. Earnings for most companies were larger in the second quarter of 1926 than in the first quarter. At the same time there is no industry in which changes are so frequent or so rapid, both in respect to the total business volume and as between companies.

The demand for domestic farm products for the balance of 1926 is expected to equal the corresponding period in 1925. Broadening markets in foreign countries for American agricultural products and machinery are believed to be certain. According to advices from our correspondents crops yields this year should be in satisfactory volume.

The old industry shows a decided improvement compared with the past three years; surplus stocks are now drawn upon to supply the demand. World wide production of crude oil has been declining. Earnings statements show that leading companies are making money.

The output of steel for the first eight months of 1926 was 31,916,175 tons—the largest for any similar period on record. These figures compare with the 1925 period of 28,888,541 tons—a previous record.

Pig iron production for the first eight months of 1926 was 26,272,278 tons against 24,380,448 tons in the corresponding period in 1925.

Money is easy and expected so to remain.

Employment is at its peak with the highest wage scales in the history of the country.

Mercantile and manufacturing conditions are fundamentally sound, and leaders in industry see good autumn and winter business. w et 2s0s bs the men and wom

HOME INFLUENCE SERMON SUBJECT AT HAMILTON MEET

A record crowd attended the Hamilton evangelistic services Sunday evening, to hear Dr. John S. Hamilton preach on "Home." Ray G. Upson, chorister, sang two numbers: "Home Sweet Home," and "Will The Circle Be Unbroken."

Dr. Hamilton held his audience in perfect attention while he spoke for nearly fifty minutes on the one important factor in American life, "The Home." He gave three resolutions, making a strong appeal for a pure, a patient and a prayerful heart in the home. He said, "If homes were ruled according to God's words, angels might be asked to stay over night with us and they will not find themselves out of their element."

"If those who rock the cradles and sing the lullabies decide the destinies of republics and empires; then, those who rock the cradles and sing the lullabies ought to be pious and pure."

"Some people are only remembered by their cruelty. When they have laid their friends away and have been known to be selfish, they have covered these graves with flowers and they pour out their lamentations and apologies upon their graves but the dead cannot hear nor admire their flowers."

"I have never known a home to be split on the family altar."

Services will be held every evening this week except tonight. The subjects for the week are as follows:

Tuesday—"Why I Believe The Bible."

Wednesday—"The Bed Too Short, The Cover Too Narrow."

Thursday—"Is There Room For Jesus In Xenia?"

Friday—"Seven Devils."

Saturday—"Why Not?"

There will be special music Tuesday evening; a male quartet composed of Ray Griffiths and Howard Blakely, of Dayton; E. H. Clevenger, and Ray G. Upson will sing.

The morning prayer meetings held in the homes will begin Tuesday morning and will continue for four mornings. These meetings will be held from 9:00 to 9:30 o'clock and will be led by women of the district in which the meetings are held. Following are the meetings for Tuesday:

Mrs. Thomas Cunningham, 329 Washington St.; Mrs. Wm. Greene, Second St.; Mrs. Haverstick, Dayton Ave.; Mrs. Muterspaw, Center St.

The children at the County Home enjoyed the service Sunday morning to such an extent that they have requested another meeting which will be held Wednesday evening at 6:15 p. m.

Farm Bureau News

Ohio farmers will take over matters of state and national legislation at a series of ten district meetings which will be held during the second week of November. These meetings are being called by President L. B. Palmer of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, who says their purpose is to give farmers in all sections of Ohio a voice in building the legislative program of farm organizations.

In announcing the meetings, Mr. Palmer has asked local Farm Bureau and Grange officials in every county to send representatives to one of the meetings, prepared to present the views of farmers of that section.

Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation and C. A. Dyer, legislative agent of Ohio Farm Bureau and Grange will attend all of the meetings. They will take to farmers attending the exact status of legislation at present and ask in return the wishes of farmers on the next steps to be taken.

"The meetings will be an open discussion of legislative matters," says Mr. Palmer. "Each of the meetings will be open to the general public as well as the representatives of farmers who are being asked to attend. We are particularly anxious to have members of the General Assembly and Congressmen present."

In southwest Ohio the meeting will be held at Wilmington, November 8, 10:30 a. m., Central Standard time, at Court House.

BULL TRAIN COMING

Arrangements have been made for the operation of a "Better Bull Special" on the Erie Railroad, which will make all day stops in cities and town in western Ohio: including Dayton. Special committees on arrangements have been formed at these places, and the day will be featured as "Bull Day." November 4th is the day for Greene County farmers to see the exhibit at Dayton.

The train will carry four carloads of young Holsteins, Guernsey Jersey and Ayrshire bulls, carefully selected as to type and breeding from herds free from tuberculosis. Representatives of the Holstein-Friesian Assn. of Ohio, The Ohio Guernsey Breeders Assn., The American Jersey Cattle Club, and the Ayrshire Breeders Assn., will be on the cars in charge of the various breeds.

A special exhibit car is being fitted up at the Ohio State University by Prof. C. L. Blackman of the Department of Animal Husbandry with exhibits on the results of good breeding and proper care of cattle. Talks on kindred topics will be given by representatives of the University and the Breed Associations, in a lecture coach attached to the train. Demonstrations on the good points of a dairy cow will be held on a flat car, also part of the train.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CHAPTER 29 PALM BEACH

Mary Forrest walked along the promenade at Palm Beach, Florida. It was a sparkling morning and eleven o'clock. Beside her was a sea so warm, so multi-colored, that just to look at it made one feel poetic, dreamy. Above her was a sky so impossibly blue and crystalline that it almost let her see quite clearly into heaven.

There were gardens all about her, heavy with the odors of a thousand roses.

Against Andalusian walls the bougainvillea splashed its glowing colors. It was an exotic scene for wintertime, especially when one thought of New York's bitter blasts and snow-storms.

But these were far away. And Mary Forrest, white-clad, walked in sunshine.

There were lots of other pretty girls about the place. They followed the fashion so slavishly that they all seemed to wear a kind of uniform. White silk skirt and sweater. Simple little two-piece sports frock, pastel-tinted.

And this bicycle craze! Odd, wasn't it? They all had bicycles—not motor ones, but the old-fashioned "push-bike" kind.

These were the Four Hundred—Palm Beach's inner circle.

Mary swung along to the office of her employer's broker. Cyrus Wade had told her at their early breakfast that she must come and fetch him if he lingered overlong in this charmed spot.

For—like so many writers and followers of the "Arts"—the ticker had a marvelous lure for him. "Playing the market" was a genuine hobby of the little novelist.

It was not too profitable a hobby, and Mrs. Wade had discouraged Mary's search for him.

"Time he was at his honest work!" she had rapped out. "If he loses all his money, who's going to pay the bills down here, I'd like to know?"

So Mary had set off. She found him in a delightfully alfresco room that looked like anything but a broker's office. The paneled walls were stained a heavenly blue. There were lounge chairs of grey wicker, extraordinarily comfortable. Sunlight in bright stripes was sifting through the window awnings.

"Like the deck of a yacht," thought Mary, much intrigued. "Or the loggia of one's favorite castle in Spain."

The real purpose of the place was displayed by automatic young men with wires attached to their chests. They moved jerkily toward blackboards, chalking with nervous fingers the hourly temperature of the stock market.

Cyrus sat enthralled. No inducement of mere work would tempt him from the fascinating scene.

"Take the morning off, Miss Forrest." He was rooting in his comfortable wicker chair, smoking a cigar of long dimensions. Then he added: "What's my wife doing?"

"Oh, she's off to a meeting for bettering the condition of the farm women, round about here," said Mary. "She won't be free till nearly lunch-time."

Extraordinary wasn't it, the passion for "bettering"?

That explained, too, this crowded "ticker" room. Was it love of money, or the thrill of the eternal game? Progress—and ever Progress—was the slogan.

Crazy for amassing money? Or mere habit?

Mary walked back into the sunshine. Money as a means to an end was laudable. But hard cash, as a goal purely in itself, was incomprehensible, she thought.

Her thoughts drifted to Philip Andover. When would she see him? Surely—soon? He was no worshipper of the golden calf. He followed Art.

And yet—

This friendship with the Stuyvesants? How rich they were! How influential! Had the lure of gold touched Philip? Her heart contracted at the thought.

She went along a shaded walk, so gay with sweet-smelling blossoms. Rolling chairs, with negro pushers, and bright awnings up for shade went by her. Her eyes searched the passers idly.

Then suddenly a voice—behind her—young and eager.

"Mary! Mary Forrest! You—at last!"

She wheeled round to meet the gaze of Philip.

"You? Here?" she gasped, praying that coolness—yet, and pride—would descend upon her at this moment. She wouldn't let him guess her feelings, not if she could help it.

"As large as life—and perfectly delighted to be with you," Philip dropped into step beside her. "Shall we walk together?"

If only they could walk through life together, cried the heart of Mary Forrest.

But aloud she said, in a detached sort of tone:

"I have the morning off. But I should have thought you'd still be doing duty with the Stuyvesants?"

He colored under his coat of tan. Handsome he looked. But at the moment just a little awkward.

"Confound the Stuyvesants! They've kept me from you long enough!"

Her heart gave a great leap at that. But not for words would she have let him guess at these emotions.

"As though a man is ever kept from anything or anybody, if he chooses not to be!" She contrived a little curl of the lips, and a half-disdainful, half-amused smile.

"Mary! You don't mean it. You know I've wanted—"

"Nonsense! You've had a good time! So have I!" Her tone was as bracing as a bucket of cold water flung into his face.

"If you'd give me a moment to explain! It was a pure matter of business with the Stuyvesants. The old man is in the advertising game. Head of a huge concern. He's offered me a chance. Quite an exceptional one, I think. They have a staff of artists, but I—"

He broke off, seeking the queer expression on her face. "You think I'm not telling the truth. You think that I was interested in the daughter?"

Mary's chin went up.

"I have not thoughts in the matter. Why should I?"

That seemed conclusive.

Philip, however, continued:

"Old Stuyvesant insisted that I motor down with them. Beggars can't be choosers, you know. He disliked talking business in the hotel in Pinehurst. Golf was on his brain all day, and highballs in the evening!"

Mary turned to him with grave eyes.

"You don't have to make these explanations. You are perfectly free to do exactly as you choose. It has nothing at all to do with me, I can assure you."

"But it has." Concern was on the young man's face. There in the open road he caught her hand, holding it tightly. "It has everything to do with you—with us. Oh, can't you understand, my dear?"

"You didn't say good-bye to me. You didn't write." Her head was averted, so that he wouldn't see the dawning joy, the hope in her eyes.

"I tried to say 'au revoir' to you—absurd to call it a good-bye, Mary!—but you'd gone. I followed so quickly that it was no good to write."

He drew her into a grove of cocoanut palms, and found a wooden bench. They both sat down.

"Let's talk a little. Let me explain. Oh, you can't believe I wasn't in earnest back in Pinehurst. You couldn't think me such a—such a cad! The Stuyvesants aren't my sort at all. But don't you see I can't refuse business chances, Mary? There's the future—our future—his earnest voice dropped to a deeper note as he emphasized the pronoun—"to be considered."

"Philip!" She was all smiles and gladness now. The mantle of stiffness, of detachment, fell away from her. "Oh, Philip—you haven't changed? You mean it?"

"Darling!" There was no one passing at the moment, and he suddenly stooped beneath her drooping hat and kissed her. "I love you, Mary. Only you, dear heart. You understand."

He told her of the business offer. The trouble was that it would mean that he would have to be permanently in New York City.

"And the winters are so cold. That cough of mine—" His young face clouded for a moment. Mary, a wave of pity and love sweeping over her, knew that he was thinking of the dream inheritance in Cuba that had slipped away from him.

Poor Philip! And she loved him so. She wished that she could give him the whole earth. Ah! if only she had money—or the capacity of earning it in huge quantities! How she would pour it at his feet!

They sat there, talking in the shadows of the palms, and then they strolled along the promenade, which had all the fascination of a moving picture.

"These people take the sun with an air of virtue of ownership," said Philip, smilingly regarding the multitude of holiday-makers. "It's like a crowded reel of film. They're all here, amplified and magnified—social climbers, bluffers—look!"—as a slim and chocolate-eyed young man went by them—"that's a bogus Russian count—Palm Beach is full of bluffers. These girls there"—Mary turned to look at some pert dam-

—they're gold diggers of the cleverest type. They'll land their wealthy fish, all right. And—as some stout, important little men came down the steps of an hotel—these are the politicians. Lots of them about."

"And there's a movie star," cried Mary, gazing at a gorgeously bedizened woman, who looked very different, sartorially speaking, from the severely simple styles of Palm Beach's inner circle.

"Oh, they're all here," said Philip. "Actresses and prize-fighters, pioneers, bush-whackers, dreamers, loafers, millionaires."

"It's fascinating," Mary answered. "The sky was doubly blue—since this interview with Philip the breeze balmer—the singing of the palms more dreamily romantic."

"These Spanish and Italian villas are almost more consistently Spanish and Italian than what one sees in Italy and Spain," commented Philip. "And isn't it marvelous how cleverly they make the buildings look old?"

Mary laughed.

"They 'ag' the buildings just as cleverly as they rejuvenate the men and women!" she retorted.

Eldemiller; Recitation, Jesse Turner; Benediction, H. C. Haverstick.

Committee in charge of program, Mrs. H. M. Stewart, Mrs. Joe Coy, organist, Miss Grace Miller, music.

Mrs. Charles Giesler entertained the Community Club at her home east of Zimmerman Wednesday afternoon. Sixteen members and friends were present.

Mrs. H. H. Stewart vice president presided at the meeting. Miss Lida Ferguson continued the story of her trip last summer begun at the September meeting of the club, giving a very vivid and enjoyable account of her visit to the Yellowstone National Park. Two piano solos were given by Miss Dorothy Geisler.

Refreshments of grapes and cake were served by Mrs. Stewart and Miss Lizzie Haverstick.

Two new names were added to the roll, Mrs. Elliott and Miss Mary Ater.

A query from a neighboring club as to "how the Zimmerman Community Club did things," etc., elicited the following ideas as to why this club has been able to accomplish so many things—First, the splendid Community Spirit shown by all. Second, the excellent team work or working together and third, the enthusiastic unselfish active service and devotion of the president, Mrs. H. C. Haverstick and her band of members.

The club will serve lunch at the Ralph Shoup sale Wednesday, Oct. 20.

Miss Mary Coy a student at Wilmington College, spent a recent week end with home folks.

Mrs. George Ferguson and Miss Lida Ferguson were callers at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Eldemiller and family near New Carlisle.

Mrs. Frank Barron spent several days with her father at Troy, the latter being ill.

Cliff Miller and family of near Yellow Springs attended Sunday School and Church here Sunday and were dinner guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stewart entertained at dinner Sunday, Rev. Eldemiller and family.

The Old-Order Church of the Brethren (Dunkard) will hold the Annual Communion Services Saturday evening Oct. 16 and Breakfast Sunday morning Oct. 17.

The Annual Communion Service at the Conservative Church of the Brethren Xenia Pike, will be held at 6 p. m. Saturday, November 6, and Sunday morning, November 7. A special service will take the place of the Sunday School and regular preaching hour.

President Arthur Morgan, Antioch College, has expressed his opinion of the inestimable value of county-wide library service to Greene County.

The following letter was sent entirely voluntary by President Morgan to Mrs. W. M. Hardman, a member of the County Committee working in the interest of the County Library.

Antioch College, Yellow Spring, O. Office of The President.

Mrs. W. M. Hardman, Yellow Springs,

My dear Mrs. Hardman:—May I add my word to that of Mr. Nash in favor of a county-wide library district. I believe that for many boys and girls such a development might mean the remaking of their lives.

When I was a boy we had very few books in the home and very few of my associates cared to read. It was through our public library that I became interested in literature in general and came to have an outlook wider than that of the immediate community. I feel that that little library furnished me the one chance I ever had as a boy to get acquainted with great minds. Without it I doubt whether I would ever have had any interest beyond those of our immediate community.

Not only would your book-wagon furnish entertainment and information to people over the county, but now and then it might awaken the mind of some boy or girl whose service to his community might be worth more than all your library district would ever cost. Seldom has a county government considered a service to its people more important than this.

Sincerely, Arthur E. Morgan, President.

President Arthur Morgan, Antioch College, has expressed his opinion of the inestimable value of county-wide library service to Greene County.

The following letter was sent entirely voluntary by President Morgan to Mrs. W. M. Hardman, a member of the County Committee working in the interest of the County Library.

DOG HAS TO WALK, SHE SUES

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—Miss Marjorie Manger's pedigree Boston bull terrier, "Teddy," rolls at will in the luxurious rugs of the fashionable Embassy apartments here. His mistress continues to take him up and down in the passenger elevator in spite of an ultimatum which the owners of the exclusive building have issued that Teddy must tag his rides in the freight elevator.

No dogs are allowed in the place at all, according to the leases, but ever since a disturbing incident there last January, the regulation has not been enforced and Teddy has been having a lovely time riding in the elevators and all that sort of thing.

The disturbing incident occurred when Miss Manger and her dog, Teddy, boarded an elevator to go to her sixth floor apartment. The negro elevator boy reminded her of the rule and not only refused to operate the elevator but also refused to permit Miss Manger to do so.
